Saigon Balks At Equality For Viet Cong

PARIS (UPI) — The Saigon government balked again Monday at allowing the rival Viet Cong an equal and independent role at the expanded Paris Vietnam war talks. The action dimmed prospects for opening the conference this week.

On the Communist side, Radio Hanoi broadcast a Viet Cong communique saying it wanted to establish a "peace cabinet" in Saigon that apparently would replace the South Vietnamese government.

Pham Dang Lam, the working chief of the South Vietnamese negotiating team, met 2½ hours Monday with Cyrus Vance, No. 2 man in the American delegation, in an effort to come to an agreement on procedural arrangments for the talks.

POSITION UNCHANGED

"Our position has not changed," Lam told newsmen later. "You all know our position."

South Vietnam insists that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front is a tool of the North Vietnamese government and high command and has no right to attend the talks as a separate entity.

Lam said one of the matters discussed with Vance Monday was the shape of the table for the broadened talks. The United States wants a rectangular table with the American and South Vietnamese on one side and the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong on the other. Hanoi insists on a square table which would signify equal footing for the NLF.

KY BLASTED

"Everything now depends on the other side," Lam said when asked when he thought the full conference could begin.

An official statement from the North Vietnamese Monday blasted vice-president Nguyen Cao Ky, the superviser of the South Vietnamese team. On his arrival in Paris Sunday, Ky said the allies hoped that "justice and reason" would prevail at the talks.

"This is of no interest to us because it is the language of a puppet, a valet of the United States and a stooge of Hitler," the North Vietnamese statement said of Ky.

FEARS STRESSED

For the fifth day in a row Monday there was no meeting between North Vietnamese and American officials on the procedural issues. Agreement was reported last week on languages to be used and arrangments for briefing newsmen.

Bi and Bi Stories Page 10

Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the second report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, tabled in the Commons Monday:

● French should be started in Grade 1 in English-speaking schools, and English in Grade 3 in French-speaking schools.

● Public education should be provided for the official minority language group, French or English, in all parts of Canada that will be designated as bilingual districts.

● In these minority schools, the mother tongue of the minority group should be the normal language of instruction.

● Parents should have the right to send their children to either the majority school or the minority school, but the number of majority-language children going to the minority school should be limited if necessary to preserve its "linguistic and cultural character."

● Teachers destined for the minority schools should be trained in separate institutions from those destined for the majority schools, but must be equally well qualified.

● The federal government should accept, in principle, the responsibility for extra costs that the provinces incur in providing education in the minority language.

Bennett Approves Of More French

Premier Bennett said Monday his government was in favor of teaching "more French as a second subject" in B.C. schools.

He was commenting on a recommendation of the second report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism that all school pupils be required to study the second official language.

★ ★ ★

The report suggests that English-speaking children start French in Grade 1, and that French-speaking children start English in Grade 3.

Mr. Bennett said he agreed in principle with the teaching of more French in schools throughout the province, but added that getting enough teachers for the expanded program was likely to create difficulties.

★ ★ ★

Another major Bi and Bi recommendation contained in the report released Monday, calling for establishment of official language minority schools in bilingual districts, doesn't directly affect B.C. because there are no such districts as defined in the commission's first report.

Damaged foil raised from sea

New Hydrofoil Design Likely Crash Result

SEATTLE (AP)—Owners of the hydrofoil vessel Victoria say that out of calamity they have learned their high-riding ship is safe, but may need changes in design.

One of the vessel's two foils was sheared off Nov. 20, after striking a floating log near Port Townsend, Wash., while the Victoria was carrying 21 passengers from Victoria to Seattle.

The foil sank in about 170 feet of water, but was recovered by special salvaging teams during the weekend.

The Victoria struck a deadhead and quickly settled down to her hull, shaking up the passengers and three crew members.

But William Niedermair, president of the Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, said backers of the hydrofoil know "nothing catastrophic will happen if the foil hits something. That was the maximum accident you could have."

Niedermair added that some alterations may have to be made.

"We might have to revise our thinking on what the design should be," Niedermair said. He said a new design might involve a special mechanism to drop a foil should it hit something.

The Victoria limped into port on her own power following the collision with the log.

Ground Personnel Dispute

Air Delays Minor In Work-to-Rule

Problems Expected Closer to Christmas

From CP

A work-to-rule slowdown by 2,200 Air Canada passenger agents, switchboard operators and ground hostesses produced only slight delays in a flight schedules, airline spokesmen said late Monday.

The employees, members of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, began working to rule early Monday saying they will maintain the slowdown until a settlement is reached in negotiations for their new work contract.

Service was normal in most of the 29 Air Canada depots across Canada. There had been five- to 10-minute lags out of Montreal International Airport early in the day after long lineups formed at ticket counters.

Company spokesmen reported flights running on schedule at Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Halifax.

Ticket office traffic was the only area affected in Victoria, a spokesman for the association said.

Bob Horsman, the association's Vancouver district chairman, said the "work perfection" program made it necessary to take more time processing tickets in the Victoria office.

Air traffic at Victoria International Airport was so light that the effect of the planned move wasn't felt. However, he expected an increase in Christmas business would create problems by next Friday.

There were no delays "of any consequence" at Toronto International Airport.

The work-to-rule manoeuvre, a technique often adopted by employees who lack the right to strike, was called Sunday night by officers of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association after conciliation talks with the company broke down at midnight in Toronto.

The negotiations resume tonight in Montreal.

Cabinet Well-Briefed

By IAN STREET

Legislative Reporter

The provincial government came under varying degrees of attack Monday as several organizations presented their annual briefs to cabinet.

Spokesmen for the delegations said later that they had received indications of new government policies — ranging from a tighter rein on government purse strings in the area of new aid to municipalities, to a wide-ranging provincial physical fitness program.

CHANGES INDICATED

There were also areas of apparent contradiction, however. One group emerged from a session with the cabinet to report that the government would not pass legislation aimed at the nuisance created by discarded non-returnable bottles, while another group said anti-litter laws would get more teeth.

Among the new policies and legislative changes indicated to delegation spokesmen were:

● Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan said the Union of B.C. Municipalities was told there would be no more money for municipalities in the 1968 budget. (No reference was made to the extra $1 per capita for local ambulance services announced by Premier Bennett last fall and presumably still to be included in the budget.)

The UBCM delegation also gathered, Mr. Morton said, that there was no doubt that B.C. would have a higher standard of anti-pollution enforcement next year, and it was equally certain the government had no intention of introducing enabling legisla-

B.C. Willing to Discuss, Not to Change, Bill 33

The legislation under which the new B.C. Mediation Commission operates is not subject to negotiation, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Monday.

Mr. Peterson said he was willing to meet officials of the B.C. Federation of Labor, as they requested in a wire sent Monday morning, but wanted it clearly understood that the meeting would not be for the purpose of negotiating changes in Bill 33.

"I am happy to receive their views, as I received them before the legislation was put into effect and afterwards," the minister said.

★ ★ ★

"But it is not a case of negotiation with either management or labor. We represent the public and will put the public interest first, whether or not it meets with the approval of labor or management."

The federation has said it is prepared to support the mediation commission legislation if the government will eliminate sections which provide for compulsory settlement of disputes in which the cabinet declares the public interest to be involved.

COLONIST 500 FUND

Granted Wish Would Ease Her Troubles

Pauline is a grown woman with a Christmas wish.

She doesn't know where her husband went when he left home two years ago. And she no longer really cares. But she wishes that through some magic or other she could communicate with him for only a few seconds.

★ ★ ★

She would let him know what Christmas is like for the three children he left behind. How it is to sit there helplessly and watch the deep disappointment in their faces. To try to explain how Christmas can't be as it once was, that it may never be very good again.

★ ★ ★

Pauline's Christmas wish is not the result of any feeling of malice. It's just that sometimes, when a burden weighs too heavily on one person's shoulders, it helps to let someone else carry it for a moment.

In many cases the Colonist 500 Fund can ease the burden a little. It has done so for the past 11 Christmasses. Money collected by the fund goes to 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau, an agency of the Community Chest. Each of the families received $33 last year.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or left at Avis Rent-a-Car, 800 Douglas.

Yard Fears '30s Shootout

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's "Bonnie and Clyde" gang abandoned its latest "stolen" car Monday almost under Scotland Yard's nose, then apparently hit the road again.

★ ★ ★

The four young delinquents and their blonde girl friend abandoned their sedan in a London suburb a few miles from Scotland Yard. Then they apparently continued flight, leading police on a chase that the Yard warned could end in a 1930s-style shootout.

"This is ridiculous in this day and age," said a crime squad spokesman at the Yard. "We'll get them — and we'll answer violence with violence."

The car was found early Monday morning in a suburban subway station parking lot a few miles from the homes of the [illegible] days after two of them robbed a Birmingham bank of $48,000 after escaping from reform school.

Police said motorists later reported seeing the gang, armed with shotguns and other weapons, headed towards the south coast of England in another stolen car.

★ ★ ★

The bank robbers, Roger Denhardt and Terence Tharme, both 20, were later joined by two other reform school fugitives, Francis Harren and Christopher Hague, both 19, and Sandra Ann Shelton, 18, who police say has a "taste for the fast, fast life."

★ ★ ★

Since then, they have eluded a nationwide police dragnet in a succession of stolen cars in an escapade similar to the exploits of the notorious Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker who became gangland legends in the United States in the 1930s.

O'Neill

'For a Selfish Ulster Find Another Leader'

BELFAST (Reuters) — Prime Minister Terence O'Neill warned Northern Ireland is on the brink of chaos with neighbor set against neighbor in age-old religious bitterness and strife.

In a television address, O'Neill appealed for a swift end to growing disorder.

He said Ulster has no armed forces to resist Britain and in any case Britain paid Ulster's £100,000,000 ($260,000,000) annual budget deficit.

"If you want a separate, inward-looking selfish and divided Ulster then you must seek for others to lead you along that road," he said.

B.C. Cabinet Thoroughly Briefed

tion for Sunday sports at the forthcoming session.

● B.C. and Yukon Jaycees were told legislation would be introduced at the next session setting up a new physical fitness program for the province.

The premier asked the delegation, a spokesman said, to see that the organization was totally committed to the new program.

ALL RESIDENTS

Mr. Bennett later told reporters the physical fitness program would be entirely new, and would involve all of the people of the province.

● B.C. Federation of Agriculture said the cabinet expressed concern about the mounting litter on highways, including the discard of non-returnable bottles. Manager R. B. Stocks said, "The way the premier reacted indicated to me that the government was going to put some teeth into these controls."

The government gave no indication, he added, despite strong urging by the federation, that it would bring in new legislation this session based on the 1964 Clyne report which recommended complete upgrading of existing statutes in the field.

● International Railway Brotherhood chairman F. H. Lowe said members of the cabinet made jocular remarks about the organization's request for liberalization of provincial liquor laws. But he added, "We got every indication that the liquor laws are now under review."

LITTER CONTROL

Mr. Lowe said his delegation was told flatly the government would not introduce legislation to re-institute the returnable bottle, but felt the public should be educated to control litter.

The briefs submitted by delegations, for the most part, comprised resolutions passed by their organizations earlier this year.

The UBCM, representing 135 municipalities in the province and 16 regional districts, criticized the government for making "unilateral decisions" on matters involving local governments, called for legislative authority setting out financial aid to municipalities in establishing sewage treatment plants, protested loss of revenue from minor traffic fines, and proposed major changes in financing and administration of regional colleges.

Mayor Morton said following the delegation's meeting with cabinet, "The premier made it quite plain to us, and we got the message, that there would not be more money for municipalities.

"This apparently stems from the fact that there would be less money coming to the province from Ottawa and therefore it could not be expected to give more money to the municipalities.

"I tried to stress through my presentation (dealing with need for greater local autonomy and improved communications between provincial and municipal governments) that we wanted no more money, we wanted more co-operation."

PAY OWN COSTS

Mayor Hugh Stephen, dealing with administration of justice, asked the province to make Motor Vehicle Act offenders pay their own police and court costs. He added that the only economic alternative was for the government to assume full responsibility for the cost of administering justice at the local level.

The UBCM brief said it was unjust of the legislature last spring to abolish traffic fines for minor moving offences, without consulting municipalities, because in so doing it eliminated a source of compensating revenue. This year it could cost $100,000 in lost revenue for Victoria alone.

If the offender himself, rather than local taxpayers, was required to pay police costs and if necessary court costs, it would not be considered a fine, but simply a means to recover the costs resulting from his carelessness."

LIBRARY AID

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich told the cabinet provincial grants to libraries were seriously deficient, and the brief called on the government to raise its present 8-per-cent contribution to 20 per cent of the total library budget.

Mr. Morton said major changes in financing and administration of regional colleges were required at once if these institutions were to meet the needs. He added, "The slow and halting progress in this field clearly indicates the local taxpayers are unwilling to accept additional real property tax burdens to support education beyond the secondary level."

The provincial Council of Women, in its brief to the cabinet, requested a study to revise education taxation so that a greater share was shifted from the home-owner to those who were developing the resources of the province. Mr. Bennett told the delegation the home-owner at present only directly carried 9 per cent of the total school bill.

The council also asked for a mandatory enumeration and redistribution survey of provincial ridings every 10 years immediately following the Canada census.

A Jaycee spokesman said the premier was "quite cool" to a suggestion that all members of the legislature be required by law to be Canadian citizens. The cabinet also rejected a proposal that the Jaycee pledge of allegiance to the Canadian flag be introduced in B.C. school system.

Air Canada Delays Minor day denied union statements that employees have been threatened with suspension if they participated in a slowdown.

They said they may have cautioned employees to use care in such a policy, warning that any deliberate disobedience or breach of the law could lead to suspension, but no one suggested suspensions for a work-to-rule policy alone.

ACCUSES CHAIRMAN

John Hayes, president of the employees' association, Monday accused Thomas O'Connor, chairman of the conciliation board, of "stalling for time."

He said the bargainers had been no closer to settlement of the wage issue when talks broke up Sunday, "and the company was even trying to take away some of the other things already agreed on."

Major items under dispute are wages, working conditions, transfer clauses and duration of the new contract.

SEEK WAGE INCREASE

Under the old contract, which expired July 31 this year, the passenger agents earn between $325 and $550 a month and switchboard operators $260 and $382.

Hayes said the association wants salary increases ranging from 19 to 35 per cent in a one-year contract. The company has offered a 15-per-cent increase over two years.

Hayes said the major effect of the slowdown would be passenger inconvenience.

Doctors May Vary in Extent Of Routine Medical Checkup

Your Good Health

By G. T. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What should a young woman expect in a routine medical checkup? I am 25, married, without children, in good health, and taking birth control pills.

Ordinarily my doctor's nurse takes my height and weight, checks my blood pressure and makes a urinalysis. Then my doctor checks my heartbeat, examines breasts for lumps, inspects throat and eyes and examines the pelvis.

Am I getting a thorough physical examination? Should I receive a Pap smear test? Should I receive any booster shots, as for polio, tetanus, or anything else? — S. T.

Physical examinations vary widely in scope. It depends on the time a physician can allot to such work and on his facilities. Cost also is a factor with some patients.

What you describe is average and covers screening for a good many more disorders than you suspect. Patients seldom are aware of how much a doctor detects by observing such things as skin and hair texture, your breathing, posture, color and other features (or signs).

I take it for granted that your doctor takes a brief history of any specific complaints and how your general health has been.

I do think a check of the blood (hemoglobin test, to determine iron content) is so useful as to be included in a checkup.

Most women expect and should have a Pap test annually, an excellent means of detecting cancer before it can progress. And a periodic chest X-ray (perhaps from one of the mobile units) is a splendid precaution.

As to booster shots, you may have to remind him of them. A smallpox booster every three to five years is wise. If you had the polio vaccine in sugar-cube form, a booster is now considered advisable every five years.

A tetanus booster is somewhat optional; by all means have a booster if you work in the soil (as gardening) or are generally active outdoors and subject to injury or if you are around horses.

If there is any probability of diabetes (a family history of the disease or if you are overweight) an occasional blood sugar test, done two hours after a heavy meal, is important.

MINIMAL TEST

What you have listed and I have added to the list make a minimal screening test for average purposes, I would say. Other tests would be indicated if appropriate symptoms appear.

Your age also has some bearing on what special tests may be added, an eye checkup being one.

In general, however, I see no purpose in a large battery of routine tests as they do not as a rule yield enough information to warrant the cost.

U.S. Warships Cruise Into Soviet Doorstep

ISTANBUL (AP) — Two United States destroyers glided across the Black Sea at the southern doorstep of the Soviet Union on Monday night in a cruise that brought a new blast of complaint from Moscow.

The Dyess and her sister ship, the Turner, sailed into the sea along Turkey's coast Monday morning amid reports here that three Soviet destroyers were nearby.

The aim of the cruise was seen as a move by the U.S. to remind Moscow that the Black Sea is an international body of water as well as a Western response to the Soviet naval buildup in the Mediterranean.

In London, Admiral Luciano Sotgiu, a senior Italian naval commander, contended the Soviet buildup was "a sort of invasion of the Mediterranean" for political ends.

The two U.S. 6th Fleet vessels, 3,500 tons each, sailed through Istanbul's Bosporus Strait into the Black Sea.

Soviet criticism of the U.S. naval presence in the Black Sea was mounted last week by the Soviet Communist party organ Pravda. It claimed the cruise violates the Montreux Convention of 1936, governing the passage of warships through the Turkish straits—the Dardanelles and Bosporus—linking the Mediterranean to the Black Sea.

Pravda termed the American presence a provocation. It claimed the presence of the destroyers was illegal because they carried rockets capable of firing nuclear missiles.

Turkey and the U.S. rejected the Soviet claims, pointing out that the tonnage, armaments and length of visit of the American destroyers are well within limitations stipulated by the convention.

Writing for the official Soviet news agency Tass, Leonid Velichansky labelled as a "false argument" a British commentary that the American ships entered the Black Sea in retaliation for the recent increase in the number of Soviet warships in the Mediterranean.

★ ★ ★

On the contrary, Velichansky argued, the increase in the Soviet Mediterranean fleet was, itself, a retaliation for alleged tension caused by U.S. 6th Fleet ships in the Mediterranean.

Terms Change Studied

UN Bond Doubt Feared

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations General Assembly has been handed the tough task of dealing with a financial matter that many developed countries say involves confidence in United Nations bonds, those that it has issued and those it may want to issue in the future.

In 1961 the United Nations, to get out of financial difficulties caused by a drain on its resources from peacekeeping operations, primarily in The Congo, issued almost $170,000,000 of two-per-cent, 25-year bonds.

Sixty-four countries bought the bonds. The United States purchased $76,000,000, Canada more than $6,000,000.

Since then the UN has paid interest and amortization out of UN revenues.

The General Assembly's budgetary committee passed a resolution last week asking that the question of repayment of the bonds be sent to an advisory group.

Behind this is a three-year campaign of some smaller countries to change the terms of the bond issue making it possible for them to pay a smaller amount toward amortization of the bonds.

To Canada and the United States and others even a study of changing the terms of the bonds is tantamount to putting confidence in UN financing in question.

The resolution must be ratified by the General Assembly.

It was passed in committee by a vote of 29 to 28.

Jordan Plea to Nixon: Halt Israel Jet Sales

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Jordan said Monday it has appealed to President-elect Richard Nixon to stop the sale of Phantom jet warplanes to Israel by the U.S.

Ambassador Muhamad El-Farra of Jordan told the 126-nation General Assembly special political committee the Jordanian house of representatives sent a message condemning the decision of the Johnson administration to furnish Israel with new jets.

Italy May Move Further Left Under New Rule

ROME (AP) — The Italian Socialists said Monday they would move the country further left under a new tripartite government program nearing ratification.

"Our demands have been amply—and in some cases totally—accepted," said Secretary Mauro Ferri, whose party agreed to return to a new centre-left coalition and end a government crisis.

Ferri pledged that drastic university and high school reforms, new measures improving workers' rights and social benefits and further state participation in the economy would be approved by the new government.

ACCEPTANCE SOON

Premier - designate Mariano Rumor is expected to accept officially the task of forming Italy's 29th post-war government Wednesday or Thursday. He will present to President Giuseppe Saragat an enlarged cabinet giving the Socialists increased power within the alliance with Christian Democrats and Republicans.

Both the deputy premier and the foreign minister are expected to be Socialists.

Rumor's aides said he would give at least nine cabinet posts to Socialists, against 16 for his own Christian Democrats and one to the Republicans.

KEY POSITIONS

Veteran Socialist leader Pietro Nenni is the apparent next foreign minister, while Francesco de Martino, head of the left wing of the party, is expected to become deputy premier.

Last-minute secret negotiations over cabinet posts came as another week of labor unrest erupted.

In Sicily, where two workers were killed in a bloody clash with police last Monday, 30,000 farmhands stayed away from the fields to protest what they called government inaction.

In Avola, where the farmhands were killed, hundreds of youths demonstrated in the streets to request that police be disarmed during labor clashes.

Stiff Fight

Marines Close Circle

SAIGON (AP) — United States Marines slammed shut a massive encirclement of North Vietnamese battalions south of Da Nang, South Vietnam, Monday in a close-quarter fight that left 93 North Vietnamese and 16 American dead on the battlefield.

The final chapter of Operation Meade River was written before noon when marine riflemen charged through a patch of marshland to link up with other marines across a shallow, muddy stream.

★ ★ ★

A 50-square-mile cordon drawn 20 days before by 7,000 American, South Vietnamese government and South Korean troops had shrunk in the end to a bunkered rectangle 200 yards wide and 100 yards deep.

The operation was launched after North Vietnamese troops tried last month to seize the district town of Dien Ban, 15 miles south of Da Nang.

★ ★ ★

Marine spokesmen said the final cost was 862 North Vietnamese slain, 95 marines killed and 504 wounded, and light casualties among South Korean marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen who helped clinch the ring.

The allies also seized 89 prisoners-of-war and 73 members of the Viet Cong guerrilla political structure which had held firm control over much of the Dien Ban district.

DEBATE OPENS TODAY in Ottawa on proposals designed to bring about sweeping changes in existing Commons procedures and parliamentary rules.

Though the report which was submitted Friday by a special all-party committee appears to have the unqualified support of the government as it stands, opposition parties have announced their grave exception to two of its recommendations, one of which was described by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield as "truly horrendous, worse than closure."

The provision opposition parties dislike and distrust is one which would allow the government to set a timetable for legislation in advance, if an all-party procedural committee failed to reach agreement. Under it, the committee would meet to decide on time allocation, but in event of disagreement the government House leader would have the right to lay down the law subject to a parliamentary vote.

Under present rules, the government would have to resort to the rarely-used closure rule to end a legislative debate.

NDP parliamentary rules expert Stanley Knowles said that the new proposal would make the government House leader, Donald Macdonald, virtually "a dictator over Parliament."

Speaking not only for the Conservatives but for all other opposition parties in the House, Mr. Stanfield stated that the proposed change would leave the opposition in Parliament unnecessarily weakened in its ability to resist the arbitrary exercise of government power and render them incapable of protecting the interests of the people against abuse by a majority government.

"This proposal," he said, "goes far beyond the present rule of closure. It permits wholesale closure in advance of debate in the Commons and in advance of any opportunity for opinion to form and be expressed by the Canadian public."

It would mean, he continued, that the government can "at its own pleasure" dictate in advance that any number of items of government legislation must be passed within a given time.

The second item which disturbs the opposition is the plan to abolish the committee on ways and means which is the whole Commons, sitting in committee, debating and discussing spending estimates in detail.

The advantage of the present system is that it allows MPs to address themselves to important areas of government expenditures and question ministers in the House.

Mr. Stanfield feels that this committee should be retained especially now "at a time when government spending is of crucial importance in the understanding and discussion of public issues."

Apart from these objections the opposition party leaders have indicated their general approval of the recommendations. It would thus be in the interest of the nation if the government would decide in favor of having the proposals passed in the House item by item instead of — as it has threatened — insisting on treating the matter as an all or nothing "package deal."

In this way the Trudeau government could be assured that the majority of the report's suggestions would be accepted by all parties. However, should the Liberal regime decide against this course, it runs a very real danger of being labelled forever as dictatorial.

Black Sea Gesture

THE PASSAGE OF THE DARDANELLES and the Bosphorus by two United States destroyers and their entry into the Black Sea for a five-day cruise should not be considered a provocation by the Soviet Union, although undoubtedly there will be some who see it in this light.

The presence of American ships in the Black Sea may be an irritation to the Kremlin and even an embarrassment to the government at Ankara. For these reasons, then, the United States' decision for this uninvited visit might be questioned.

There are two likely explanations: first, that the Washington government feels it necessary to demonstrate free passage is guaranteed under the terms of the Montreaux Convention (July 20, 1936) and, secondly, that control of the narrow waters rests with Turkey.

It is true that under the terms of the Convention passage of war vessels of other than Black Sea powers is restricted. For example, in peacetime, no more than nine light surface vessels to a maximum of 15,000 tons aggregate are permitted in transit. And no more than 30,000 tons aggregate of non-Black Sea powers' warships may enter the land-locked waters beyond the Bosphorus—and then for a period limited to three weeks.

There is therefore no valid argument that any breach of treaty has occurred.

It may be that the United States' entry into the Black Sea at this time is in the nature of a response to the Soviet naval build-up in the Mediterranean. It is perhaps a reminder that the key to the passage of the Bosphorus, the Sea of Marmara and the Dardanelles is in the hands of Turkey, a member of the North Atlantic Treaty alliance, and that in certain circumstances the Soviet Mediterranean fleet could find itself deprived of much of its freedom of movement.

Turkey may not particularly relish the situation, for it will be recalled in Ankara that the Soviet Union only reluctantly gave up its claim for joint control of the Turkish seaway in 1953.

It might easily be revived.

Albania's reported offer of a coastal military base to China—improbable though its acceptance may seem—cannot be anything else than disturbing to the Soviet.

With so many tensions in the Middle East and Middle Europe it is most unwise at this time to add unnecessarily to the distracting problems of the nations concerned. The United States' destroyers have made their gesture in the Black Sea. There is nothing to keep them there.

Regional Problems Vary . . . . . . With Geographical Diversity

Local Controls Seen as Sanest Solution To Canada's Bewildering Housing Tangle

By HEWARD GRAFFTEY

NOW that the federal task force on housing has wound up its national tour and begins drafting its recommendations, we can gaze into the crystal ball at some questions they will be struggling with while formulating a national housing policy. The proposals are scheduled to be ready early in 1969.

The most poignant question, of course, is whether it is even possible to develop a policy that is truly national in scope. Vast regional disparities have convinced some members of the task force that ideas which work satisfactorily in one part of Canada would be grossly inadequate elsewhere.

For example, the "filter down theory" of housing holds that as cities expand, there will be a continuous supply of new homes being built which will be bought up by those with incomes high enough to afford them. The homes these people vacate then become available to those with lower incomes, and as these people move into "second-hand" homes, the housing benefits of an expanding city are said to be "filtering down" to the lower income groups.

* * *

Dependence on such an "invisible hand" system for providing homes for Canadians may work all right in dynamic, fast-growth centres such as Calgary, for example — but it can never hope to be an answer in some of the Maritime cities where growth is very slow indeed, and people continue to live in houses that have long since seen better days.

Again the enduring feature of Canadian planning and development emerges: it is virtually impossible to create a national policy with uniform, across-the-board application.

Even Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's "national building code," the task force has heard repeatedly, must be flexible enough to be adapted to the different climatic conditions and construction needs across the country.

We can safely assume, therefore, that any policy introduced by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, after his task force has completed its work, will have to contain special provisions for different Canadian regions.

A second question arises when you ask, "To what extent should a government's housing policy serve as an instrument of social integration?" The belief that well-planned government policies can — and should — alter the pattern of our society underlies many of the briefs that have been presented to Mr. Hellyer's task force.

In modern parlance, it is all a question of "social engineering," although there exists quite a difference of opinion on the subject. For example, one official of C.M.H.C. argues, rather vehemently, that a government has no role in pushing integration of the various income groups, that its policies should not try to force social conditions that are "unnatural." He plays down the "ghetto" idea, and says poorer people tend to live together, just as it is natural for rich people to live in the same area.

Others argue that poorer Canadians are forced to live apart from the rest of society, that public housing projects are tainted with "ghetto-like stigmas," and that governments should try to integrate the Canadian mosaic by mixing the type of housing that is constructed in newly developing areas.

* * *

In a way, the whole discussion is rather academic. There are, already in existence, housing developments in many Canadian cities where privately owned homes are mingled with homes with subsidized rents.

As well, both the C.M.H.C. official and those who argued the case for "intergration" come out of the debate agreeing on one major point: there should be more public housing, no matter where it is located.

They agree that if 20 per cent of the housing stock in Canada was public, (that is, built primarily by government housing agencies and rented to low income groups at subsidized rates), there would be fewer problems.

The great difficulty of the moment is that we have part public housing while part remains as slum dwellings, and this invites comparisons by those living in the two types. It's like asking everybody to a banquet, but then having only enough food to go half-way around.

Indeed, the whole subject of public housing itself raises another question for the task force to dissect and analyze. Some predict there may even be no more "public housing" as we have known it. At least one member of the task force favors an approach whereby low income families who need homes will be located in existing and available homes wherever they may be found throughout the city. Thus, instead of spending government money to provide public housing for these families, the money would go towards subsidizing their occupancy of existing homes. Such a plan would require, of course, a big push to provide a greater supply of new housing — in order to offset any cutback in construction of public housing.

Another indication that public housing may in fact be in its twilight days is that Mr. Hellyer announced a freeze on any further planning of urban renewal projects — which includes public housing programs — until after he introduces his new plans.

The perennial question — how to raise enough money to implement the new proposals — looms as large as it ever has. Hellyer himself has said there is no point evolving bold new schemes if it means taxes have to be substantially raised in order to carry them out.

One task force member, Peter Carter, a Montreal mortgage controller for one of the major banks, seems to have provided a way out by pointing to pension funds. There are now some $8 billion in various pension funds throughout the land, an amount destined to grow to $14 billion in just five years. Little of this money seems to be invested in mortgages (perhaps no more than 14 per cent), and it is a likely bet that Finance Minister Edgar Benson will soon be asked to devise ways to channel more pension funds into housing.

Apart from diverting these existing resources into housing, we can assume that a national housing policy will aim as well at reducing some of the costs now keeping home building at such prohibitively high rates. The government seems reluctant to remove the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials it implemented a few years ago. (Where would we make up for the lost revenue? the financiers ask.)

Similarly, there is a disinclination to flirt with the politically dangerous notion of wage and price controls as a means of keeping construction costs down. (Moreover, lacking wartime conditions, such manipulation of the economy is probably a practical impossibility.)

* * *

This leaves land. Two suggestions most popular to curb land costs are a capital gains tax on land sales (in certain cases), and government directed land assembly programs. The former is designed to check speculative land sales; the latter to produce "land banks" under public ownership and control.

This points again to the unhappy dilemma that is Canadian regionalism, since land banks are suited to the pattern of development in some parts of the country, but are not being used elsewhere simply because they do not constitute a realistic approach to the problem.

This cardinal fact of regional variation therefore, coupled with the insistent demands for decentralization, may very well lead to a national housing policy with more powers and responsibilities going to the local authorities, and with the federal government pulling out of every aspect of housing except financing.

* * *

This would allow the national government to direct the speed and pattern of development by controlling funds.

It would certainly overcome the cumbersome operation that we have witnessed to date in the performance of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, as it tries — under our present national housing policy — to play every role from that of financier to that of town planner.

Washington Calling

Charles de Gaulle Walks a Tightrope

By MARQUIS CHILDS

LIKE the Eiffel Tower, Gen. Charles de Gaulle dominates the landscape of Paris and of France. At 78, surviving still another storm, he stands as tall and unyielding as he did nearly 25 years ago when Paris was liberated and he stalked into Notre Dame Cathedral, ignoring the bullets that were still flying.

This time there is a difference. His defiance of the monetary storm comes at the end of an unpredictable year that has seen one calamity after another.

It began with de Gaulle's New Year's Day boast that France was the most stable country in Europe, with the strongest currency.

The storm that nearly forced devaluation of the franc was the climax of a series of blows putting his boast to naught. The revolution of May and June — it was not less than that — was a complete surprise, like the eruption of a volcano long considered extinct. The uprising of the students triggering a strike of 10 million workers, paralyzing the country, set in motion a train of events not yet come to rest.

The concessions forced on de Gaulle by the revolution — both open and secret concessions — say a lot about his recent trials. The personal drama of the man is an incalculable element of both strength and weakness in France's postwar history.

At the height of the revolution when France seemed about to be engulfed by a wave of communism or anarchy de Gaulle disappeared. Supposedly en route to his country retreat at Colombey les Deux Eglises, he did not appear there. The rumor spread by word of mouth that he had decided to abandon his role as president and leader.

* * *

He had gone secretly to Baden-Baden to meet the French military high command and make a pact with them. He agreed to release at once, prior to a national election, the officers who had been imprisoned for conspiring to bring him down and take over the country following his ending of the Algerian war. He also agreed, it is widely believed in Paris, to give the army complete authority in the event of another uprising.

In his seven-minute speech to the nation the other night, announcing the start of belt-tightening to get the economy in line and restore confidence in the franc, he devoted two minutes to a stern warning that force would be used to put down any new trouble. His critics saw in this the shadow of authoritarian rule to be imposed should the high taxes, the wage freeze and price controls fail to work and bring on another eruption of the still-smouldering volcano.

This may be far too gloomy. Yet, given a febrile, restless people, historically conditioned to resist government controls, one can doubt whether the austerity blanket will do the job. To end the strike and quiet the revolution last June de Gaulle granted wage increases up to 11 per cent; some say they were as high as 13 or 14 per cent. This set off a price spiral — the cost of living rose 1 per cent in October — that has eaten up perhaps half of the increase. Workers at the Renault auto plant are discussing the need for a new strike.

* * *

Still simmering below the surface are resentments over the rigidities out of the past dominating so much of French life that boiled over in May. Several of the faculties of the University of Paris have not resumed teaching. There is deep unrest in the lycees, the public high schools, over the rigid learning by rote system that does not permit the student to put a question, to say nothing of discussing the subject.

For Frenchmen in the upper levels the triumph of the German mark has been a bitter humiliation. A stern editorial in the mass circulation magazine Paris Match observes the painful truth that to the vanquished belong the spoils, noting the triumph of the German mark, the rise of Japan to third or fourth most powerful industrial nation and the strength of the Italian lira as against the franc. This reversal of what might have been expected after 1945 is put down to blunders and mismanagement within the narrow framework of the French economy.

No serious strike has occurred in Germany since the end of the Second World War, Frenchmen note. The German wage level has been so closely geared to the increase in productivity that the standard of living in Germany has doubled in 10 years. Statistics show that productivity per man-hour is slightly greater in France than in Germany but the catch is in the distribution between workers and employers, plus powerful rival unions competing for superiority.

In his pursuit of grandeur de Gaulle set out to build for France an independent nuclear striking force. This has been a drain on the budget and the economy, partly hidden in various departments so that the total has been concealed. Now to achieve budgetary cuts of one billion dollars de Gaulle has called off the hydrogen bomb test scheduled for the Pacific next year.

* * *

We are individualists, the French proudly declaim, and as individualists they have carried tax evasion to a high art. The budget for 1969 provided for a sharp increase in the inheritance tax that has been 15 per cent in the top bracket — minute compared with the similar tax in Britain and the United States. This drew a storm of protest, with a public opinion poll showing that even the Communists opposed such an invasion of the sacred entity of the Frenchman's estate. And while the proposed increase was quickly withdrawn observers here believe this contributed to the speculative flight from the franc.

Unlike any other country, except possibly India, the French citizen is a hoarder of gold. The gold in the French sock totals three to four billion dollars, and some would put it much higher. The hoard increased as the franc reeled under the attack of speculators with the imminent threat of devaluation.

* * *

Whether de Gaulle will survive — whether France of the Fifth Republic will survive — no one is sure. The symbolic economies, such as refusing to serve anything imported like caviar or whisky at the parliamentary reception the other night, seem as absurd as Lyndon Johnson's turning off the lights in the White House. In the splendid solitude of the Elysee Palace de Gaulle keeps his own counsel.

While the underlying social unrest in France may be greater, the problem de Gaulle faces is not unlike that confronting president-elect Richard Nixon. He must check inflation, bring down prices and restore confidence in the long-term stability of the currency without adding to unemployment and touching off a new wave of protest and violence. It is a feat comparable to balancing on a high wire over a yawning abyss.

For China

UN Entry No Nearer

From the Portland Oregonian

THE United Nations General Assembly appears to be getting bored with the subject of admission of Red China. The vote against inviting Peking to join was almost precisely the same this month as it was a year ago, without any significant shifts.

Of the 126 members on the swollen UN rolls, 58 voted "no," 44 "yes," 23 abstained, and one, Indonesia, was absent. Senegal and Nigeria, which voted "yes" last year, abstained this time. Morocco switched its abstention to "yes." Iceland and Guyana abstained after having voted "no" in 1967.

A few years ago, the United States was hard put in its leadership to maintain a majority against the admission of Peking and the unseating of Nationalist China. In 1965, it was a close call, with a tie vote, 47 to 47, and parliamentary uncertainty over whether a majority or a two-thirds vote would be required on the issue.

But since then, Red China's support has fallen off as the young nations of the world have gained enough maturity to recognize the threat to them of Peking's desire to export its system on a broad scale.

Ottawa Offbeat

By RICHARD JACKSON

Contemptuous of Opposition, Trudeau Rules Alone

NOBODY in these parliamentary parts—not even the elder statesmen of the Senate — can recall any prime minister with the matter-of-fact, even casually offhand confidence of Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

The airy wave of his hand, the toss of his head, the almost scornful brushoff he gives the Opposition are the gestures of the supreme self-confidence of unchallenged power.

You go to the Senate to enquire about what it used to be like, long, long ago, because there are some real ancients in the Upper House.

In terms of personal power, truly there has been nobody quite like Trudeau in the East Block for these last nearly 24 postwar years.

Not even Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who was enough of a political boss-man and monarch-of-power that intimates among his loyal Liberal subjects took to calling him "Rex."

So you check the old memories in the Senate, and ask those who were there and knew, if pompous, pious Richard Bedford Bennett, who ruled Ottawa with a stern rod of fear, was any more confident of himself than P. E. T.

And the answer is no.

Bennett, they jog your memory, was enough of an authoritarian, and so certain of the sure wisdom of his decisions, that he could liquidate an entire department — it was the old "interior," forerunner of energy, mines and resources — and dismiss every last man-jack of a civil servant.

This in mid-depression, too.

* * *

The very name "Bennett," the ruler supreme, still is invoked by Liberals at election time to remind any might-be Conservatives in the seven civil service constituencies of the National Capital Region of the Tory Terror.

But the Senate greybeards whose memories go back into the early thirties tell you that Bennett was an amateur in the uses of personal prime ministerial power compared to Trudeau.

No wonder, then, this new prime minister can stun the House of Commons with the almost casual comment that he can take Canada out of NATO "if we feel like it," and compel thousands of English-speaking civil servants to learn French, or else.

* * *

Or else, as he has made plain, forget about promotion and pay, and think, instead, as he said — but really didn't mean — of "running elevators where there are no French-Canadians."

These and other of his astounding initiatives seem to have struck the Opposition dumb. Conservative, New Democrat and Social Credit Rally alike, they just sit there agape.

When they recover — and they don't always manage a comeback — he answers them if he feels like it, or ignores them, grinning at their confusion.

He has become, so quickly in these 11 weeks since Parliament opened, the great put-down artist.

Like the other day when Halifax Conservative MP Michael Forrestall, enraged at the casual Trudeau disregard of Opposition demands for information on defence matters, told the prime minister to "straighten yourself out."

"Perhaps you would like to help me," smiled the PM sweetly, and sat down abruptly, motioning Mr. Forrestall to stand up and speak his piece.

* * *

Of course the Halifax MP really had nothing to say and remained seated, red-faced in embarrassment while the prime minister continued for perhaps 40 prickly seconds motioning him to get up.

Other times, if interrupted, the prime minister will simply shrug and sit down, leaving the baffled Opposition with its mouth open.

He bounces in his seat like a gymnast on a trampoline, he throws up his hands, he turns his back, he laughs, he treats the Opposition with what they can only regard as contempt.

This is the exercise of power — naked majority power — the supreme power of a Canadian prime minister—a power in its context of Canada greater by far than the authority of an American president, perhaps of any ruler this side of an unconcealed dictatorship.

And unlike Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent who shared their majority power with C. D. Howe, this prime minister shares it with nobody, not even his old buddy Jean Marchand.

Of course, the whole thing could blow sky-high.

And that, at this moment in political time, seems to be what the Opposition is working — but mostly waiting — for.

But as things now stand, Trudeau seems vulnerable only in whatever may be his own potential for self-destruction.

Fear of Saigon Intractability Haunts U.S. Negotiators

South Vietnam Can Wreck the Peace Talks

By CARL T. ROWAN, from Paris

Behind all the jockeying over procedures and protocol, one great, seldom-mentioned fear dominates United States planning for the broader Vietnam peace talks. It is the fear that the South Vietnamese delegation will prove to be at least as intractable as the North Vietnamese.

The greater fear is that the rival Vietnamese might turn the talks into a face-saving, propaganda brawl in which every hope for an early peace settlement is crushed.

The U.S. negotiator, Cyrus Vance, has met with the North Vietnamese again for lengthy haggling over such seemingly silly matters as who of what nationality can be in the conference room, how many sides the table is to have, what flags, if any, may be in the room.

★ ★ ★

But the U.S. is devoting the greatest attention to these details because they matter so much to Hanoi and Saigon. They are especially important to a broad U.S. effort to give the Thieu government enough of a sense of security for it to feel that it can safely move toward a peace settlement.

It is not that Americans feel the South Vietnamese delegation, under the hawkish vice-president, Nguyen Cao Ky, will deliberately commit acts to sabotage the conference. They know that all Saigon has to do to stalemate the talks is hold stubbornly to its present position on settling political matters in South Vietnam.

South Vietnam has taken the position that it is a sovereign government, and that the Viet Cong and National Liberation Front are little more than outlaws. Thus, Saigon says, there is nothing to negotiate at Paris insofar as South Vietnam's internal politics is concerned.

The Thieu government says that if the NLF and VC will lay down their guns they will be welcomed back into the political system.

Saigon has indicated that it is coming to Paris mainly to help negotiate the removal of hostile forces from its soil.

★ ★ ★

U.S. officials are privately worried about their position — even though Washington has acquiesced publicly to the view that neither the U.S. nor Hanoi has a right to determine what political changes are to occur in South Vietnam.

So the U.S. has said that Saigon will take the lead in the talks here where internal political matters are concerned while the U.S. takes the lead on such matters as withdrawal of foreign troops.

Most Americans here seem convinced that Hanoi has made a political decision to terminate this war after taking the best they can get out of it. But they do not believe it is an irreversible decision. They believe it could be wrecked by either the U.S. or South Vietnamese, plunging the war into another long bitter period of fighting.

So the whole delicate operation of the last few weeks has been a U.S. effort to find ways to ensure that South Vietnam does not wreck the talks — and knows that the U.S. will not tolerate Saigon efforts to wreck the talks.

One factor Americans are banking on is the rising new evidence of war-weariness in South Vietnam. Which Tri Quang's militant Buddhists, the Federation of Free Trade Unions, the students and several other peace groups are beginning to stir again in Saigon and other urban areas. They could soften the obduracy of the Ky delegation.

★ ★ ★

But the critical factor in Saigon's behavior is whether the U.S. or anyone else can get Hanoi to agree to steps that will ease Saigon's neurotic fear that the talks here are only a vehicle for selling out South Vietnam.

Will Hanoi agree to respect fully the demilitarized zone, to withdraw all its forces from South Vietnam, and to halt the further infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into the South? Those are items critical to any Saigon sense of security.

★ ★ ★

To take those three steps would mean that Hanoi has made a political decision to live-and-let-live with a non-Communist, or perhaps "neutral," South Vietnam.

And nobody here is willing to hazard a prediction that it has yet made that kind of political decision.

Interpreters Face-Savers

LAT, from Paris

No one has any illusions about the obstacles still to be overcome before the enlarged Vietnam peace talks even begin. They come under the heading of procedural matters.

Not the least difficulty is that delegates from the Vietnamese protagonists refuse to speak to one another.

The North Vietnamese and the National Liberation Front (Viet Cong) delegates will be speaking in Vietnamese, but all their words will be translated by their interpreters into French, and then by an American interpreter into English, since the North Vietnamese maintain the position that there are no Vietnamese to speak to on the American side.

The Saigon delegation will also speak in Vietnamese, of course. But the other side insists that their words be translated into French, and then back into Vietnamese, as though it were the Americans speaking.

U.S. Objections on Tariff Issue Ignored by Bonn

Germany Plans Move to Aid Britain

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

From Bonn

Despite strong U.S. objection, West Germany intends to push ahead this week with a plan to bring Britain closer to the European Common Market.

The issue has shaped up as a minor crisis in the relations between Bonn and Washington. It is also a measure of West Germany's new-found sense of purpose, a feeling that was strongly evident in its defence of the mark against strong pressures from its Western allies to revalue it upwards two weeks ago.

★ ★ ★

Foreign Minister Willy Brandt joins his Common Market compatriots in Brussels today for a meeting that will be devoted largely to Bonn's proposal to bring Britain into a more advantageous community.

Basically, the West German plan calls for mutual tariff reductions between Britain and the market amounting to 30 per cent over the next three years.

The proposal has been sharply criticized in Washington. The United States has taken the position that it violates specific rules of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT), which allows such measures only as part of an overall plan for the entry of Britain into the Common Market within a reasonable period of time.

France steadfastly opposes any timetable for Britain's entry, although agreeing in principle to it.

The United States argues that, given French objections, the West German proposal could, in fact, lead to even further delays in Britain's entry into the market by taking what amounts to half a step in that direction.

★ ★ ★

The Germans argue that half a step is better than none, and that considering the French position, their proposal is a significant step toward Britain's ultimate entry.

They also assert that the United States should not fear for her own trading position with respect to Britain or the Common Market.

The Germans note that American trade with the Common Market countries has doubled since the community came into being.

★ ★ ★

The United States does not contest the latter point. But it maintains that past performance is no guarantee that the new West German proposal will not put a trade squeeze on the United States and other nonmarket industrial nations such as Japan.

So far, there have been three more or less publicized exchanges on the subject plus acrimonious comments from both sides.

★ ★ ★

The question at Brussels, at least from Bonn's standpoint, will be whether the other five community partners will bow to American pressure on the issue.

The French have indicated they will go along with a tariff cutting plan, but they want to stretch it out over four years instead of three.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps the most significant aspect of this relatively minor-league debate is that the Germans are doggedly holding to their view and pushing ahead with it. U.S. officials here concede that in the past the Germans probably would not have shown such temerity.

This new sense of independence is also evident in the preparations for the election, probably next February, of a new federal president to succeed Heinrich Luebke.

★ ★ ★

The Germans have all but decided to hold the election in Berlin, in the renovated old Reichstag building, despite the expressed reservations of the three Western powers — the United States, Britain and France— which are responsible for the security to West Berlin under the occupation statutes.

The three allied powers take the position that holding the election in Berlin constitutes an unnecessary provocation to East Germany and, therfore, the Soviet Union.

In this case, as in the Common Market question and before that the revaluation crisis, the Bonn regime is not exhibiting its old sensitivity to the demands of its U.S. and European allies.

BACKGROUND

Red Terrorism In Thailand Getting Worse

By JOHN T. WHEELER, from Bangkok

The Communist-led insurgency in Thailand appears to be spreading and intensifying, with the guerrilla bands better armed and showing increasing willingness to take on government forces. There are reminders of earlier days in Vietnam.

Press reports mention Communist bands using mortars for the first time in the hills 200 miles north of Bangkok. One police source said heavier power may have to be brought in bear, presumably meaning artillery and air strikes.

The bare government statistics are reminiscent of Vietnam — an official killed here, three wounded there, a village school and a tribal welfare office burned in a third spot, and a police patrol, ambushed by 150 guerrillas in a fourth.

A relatively new element in the Thai insurgency has been an increase in guerrilla acts in the northern provinces near Laos where the Communists are afforded limited sanctuary across the Mekong River.

The government officially says the steadily increasing number of ambushes and attacks are carried out by Meo tribesmen with help from fellow tribesmen in Laos. Other sources say the attackers include Thais and Chinese of Thai descent.

★ ★ ★

Premier Thanom Kittikachorn says the infiltrators in the north come from a centre where 400 to 500 men are being trained by the Laotian Communists and North Vietnamese regulars.

It appears that much of the current action involves training and testing of insurgent units. The ambushes seldom cause serious casualties among Thai police and troops.

However, there is a suspicion among some that perhaps the full picture of what is going on in the countryside is not being told for fear of alarming the population.

U.S.-China Thaw Seen

By ARCH MacKENZIE, from Washington

President-elect Richard Nixon may find more room to alter United States foreign policy on China than he expected.

The opening so far is tiny and it may not widen. But it could serve as a start on nudging the U.S.-China relationship back at least into the dialogue ended Jan. 8, if not on the road to broader contact.

Nixon, who will be naming his secretary of state and other cabinet members Wednesday night, has emphasized that he takes a special interest in foreign affairs.

He has said ending the war in Vietnam is the first priority and laid special emphasis on patching up NATO.

Over-all, Nixon and aides such as security adviser Henry Kissinger will be working to avoid any future Vietnams by asking regional groupings in many areas to take on more self-protection and expect less from the U.S. as a kind of world policeman.

★ ★ ★

Notice of a possible thaw in China's hostility was the Chinese proposal late last month to resume the Warsaw meeting Feb. 20. They were ended last January at China's request.

Nixon made several references in his election campaign to putting U.S.-China relations on a more realistic basis if possible.

Stability in Asia after the Vietnam war will depend on China to a large extent. China's terms for ending its boycott of the U.S. or of the United Nations is removal of the American protection for Formosa.

It is judged conceivable here that Nixon might make some yards in getting through to China because China is at last willing. Leading academics and advisers are urging Nixon to try anyway.

Japan's steady growth as the real Asian powerhouse may encourage Nixon to go ahead.

Talks with Russians Secret

Veil Angers Czechs

PRAGUE (UPI) — Czechoslovaks anxious to know their country's fate expressed anger and disappointment Monday at the elaborate secrecy over a weekend meeting in Kiev between Soviet and Czechoslovak leaders.

Although the entire post invasion relationship between the two countries was believed discussed Saturday and Sunday in the Ukrainian city, almost nothing about the meeting has been reported in either nation's press.

LANDED SUNDAY

The Czechoslovak news agency CTK did not even report the return of Alexander Dubcek and other top Czechoslovak leaders to Prague by plane, although airport officials said the aircraft landed at 7 p.m. Sunday.

"We weren't told when they left, so we don't know anything about their return," one official lamented.

PROMISES FORGOTTEN

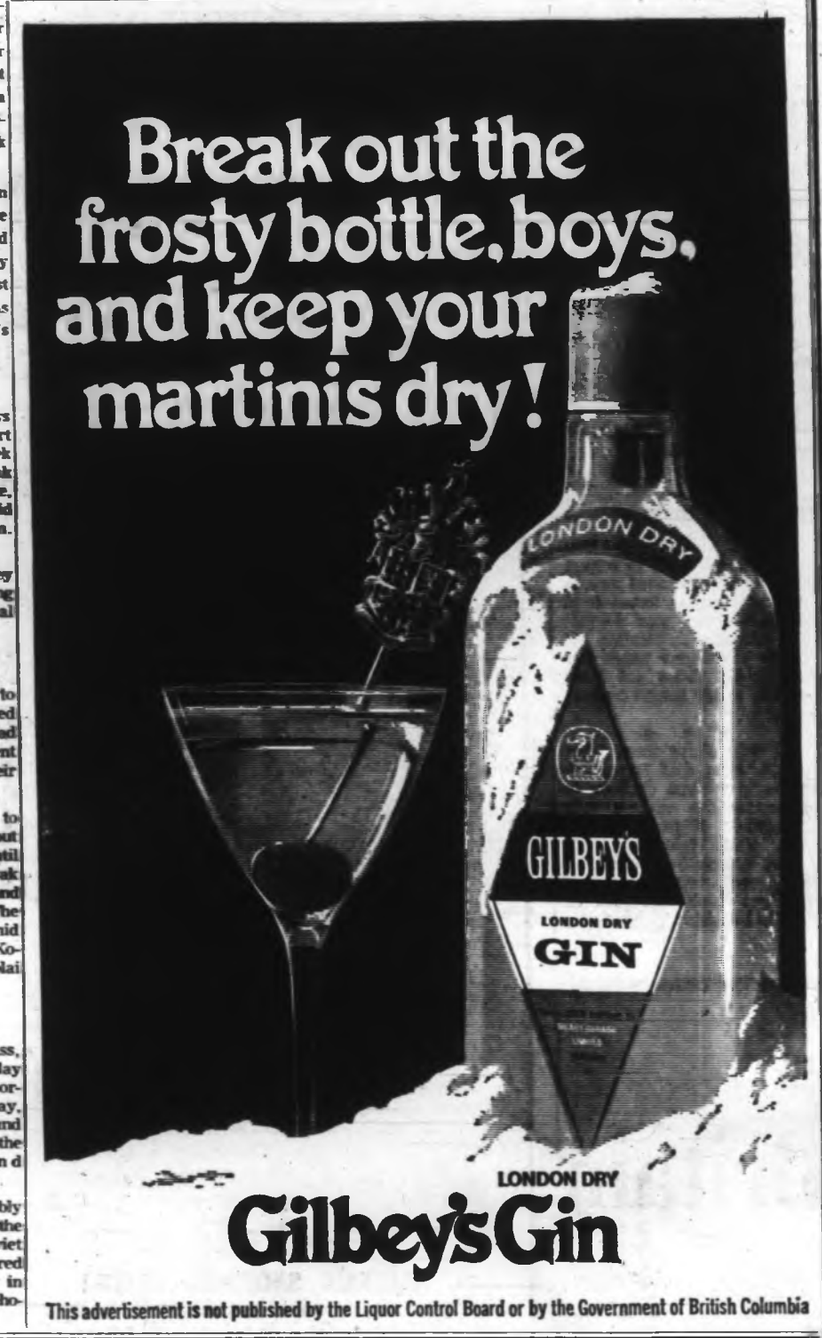

The elaborate precautions to guard against news leaks irrated many Czechoslovaks, who had been told by the government they would be informed of their leaders' activities.

Dubcek was accompanied to the meeting — rumored but never officially announced until it was over — by Czechoslovak President Ludvik Svoboda and Premier Oldrich Cernik. The Soviet delegation included Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Nikolai Podgorny.

TALKS CORDIAL

The Soviet news agency Tass, which revealed the two-day discussion by publishing portions of a communique Sunday, termed the talks "cordial" and said they were held "in the spirit of comradeship and friendship."

One major topic that probably came up for discussion was the publication of a pro-Soviet newspaper that has angered Czechoslovaks and resulted in loud protests within the Czechoslovak press.

Legislation, Royal Commission

Quebec Leader Acts On Language Issue

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, confidently declaring "I feel completely safe" within the ruling Union Nationale party, Monday moved on two fronts to resolve thorny language problems in Quebec province.

In the legislative assembly he:

- Announced creation of a five-member royal commission with a one-year mandate "to inquire and report on the situation of French as a working language in Quebec."
- Introduced legislation that would make legal the right of parents to have children educated in the official language of their choice—but English-speaking students would have to acquire "working knowledge" of French.

ST. LEONARD STRIFE

The language bill, which Mr. Bertrand said he hopes will be passed by the legislature this session, would empower the government to resolve the language crisis in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard.

The bill got first reading in the assembly Monday.

The St. Leonard crisis was brought on when a movement dedicated to the spread of French-language-only education successfully sought the gradual elimination of bilingual primary schooling in St. Leonard.

GRADE 1 ENGLISH OUT

Starting this fall, St. Leonard primary schools under the jurisdiction of the Roman Catholic school board have eliminated bilingual teaching in Grade 1 and will have French-only teaching in one additional grade each year from now on.

The St. Leonard affair provoked a crisis within the Union Nationale government with nationalist elements rising against the premier's plans to introduce legislation that would protect Quebec's English-speaking minority.

CAUCUS DISCUSSIONS

But at a news conference Monday, Mr. Bertrand said the idea for a royal commission into the French language "ripened" during several meetings the Union Nationale caucus held to discuss proposed solutions to the St. Leonard problem.

The royal commission, whose chairman is Vice-Dean Jean-Denis Gendron of the letters faculty at Laval University here, is to recommend "appropriate measures" to ensure:

- "The linguistic rights of the majority as well as the protection of rights of the minority.
- "The full development and the use of the French language in Quebec in all sectors of activity, educational, cultural, social and economic."

The language bill would create a 15-member linguistic committee within the superior council of education which now is composed of a Roman Catholic and a Protestant committee to advise the education department on the system which now is divided alone religious lines.

CABINET APPOINTMENT

The linguistic committee consisting of 10 French-speaking representatives and five English-speaking representatives appointed by the cabinet, would make regulations under which the education minister would recognize public schools to be either French-language or English-language institutions.

The committee would make regulations on curricula from Grades 1 to 11 to ensure that every person who attended an English-language public institution would acquire a working knowledge of the French language.

The powers and duties of the school boards would be changed to oblige school boards to ensure that the courses of study in their schools complied with curricula and regulations made for "Catholic or Protestant-English language or French language public schools."

Nixon Sets Date

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Nixon unveiled plans Monday to name his cabinet in a television spectacular Wednesday night, appointed a Negro to his White House staff and asked William McChesney Martin to remain in his post as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Nixon will name all 12 members of this cabinet at 7 p.m. PST Wednesday. He appointed Robert Brown of High Point, N.C., to become a special assistant to the president. Brown was assigned particular responsibility for the program Nixon calls "black capitalism," an effort to promote Negro business ownership and management.

Brown, 33, is a public relations man who worked in the Nixon election campaign. He is also a member of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Toys Sought For 'Old'

Finding toys for 12- and 13-year-olds is the big problem of the Saanich Kiwanis Club's Christmas toy program, president Stan Clark said Monday.

Skates, hockey sticks and other sports equipment have been donated, but not all teenagers are sports-minded, he said. Toy orders for 65 families, representing about 250 children, have been filled so far, but this is just part of the list, he added.

UN Support

International Court Sought

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The first Asian president of the General Assembly called Monday for an international court of human rights, high commissioner and several regional commissions to protect the human rights of all.

Gen. Carlos Romulo, newly-appointed Philippine foreign secretary, outlined a four-point plan for the future in a message to the assembly marking the 20th anniversary of adoption of the universal declaration of human rights. It called for:

- A vigorous campaign for public support behind early ratification of international human rights legislation.
- Expanded advisory services in human rights, aimed especially at young people in dependent territories or developing nations.
- A co-ordinated long-term U.S. program to advance women as "equal partners in the progress of humanity."
- A bold and innovative search for effective means of implementing and enforcing human rights . . ."

The provincial government has urged all British Columbians to make an extra effort today to "reduce the tension caused by discrimination and promote better understanding among all people."

It is the 20th anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations.

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said individuals and governments working together could accomplish a great deal in this field, and called upon all to dedicate themselves again to the task of achieving the goal set out by the UN.

Firefighters Ending Cool Year

The B.C. Forest Service issued a final report Monday for the firefighting year, showing 1,647 fires compared with 3,217 during the previous year.

Firefighting costs dropped to $794,619 from $6,934,480 in the year before, while the total of areas blackened by flames fell to 33,576 from 244,683. Damage and losses to timber plummeted to $697,272 from $5,679,112.

Doukhobors Asked to Change

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday a small number of Freedomite Doukhobors are using their children as pawns in an attept to force Ottawa to accede to their wishes.

He urged members of the group who have kept their children out of Agassiz area schools in an effort to force the federal government to permit the return to Canada of Freedomite spiritual leader Stefan Sorokin, now in Uruguary, to reconsider their action.

"They have been law-abiding citizens," Mr. Peterson said. "They have been living in peace. I am disappointed that a few, and I think it should be emphasized that it's a relatively small number, are using their children as pawns in an effort to force the federal government to take action.

"I think this is most ill-advised. I urge the parents to reconsider their action because education is of vital importance to these children, as it is to all children in the province today."

Education Minister Donald Brothers said his department plans no action on the absentee students, saying it is up to the local school board. But he added: "I think that by all means the children should be back in school as soon as possible."

This free brochure tells you how to cut the costs of saving for retirement.

You'd like to be as financially healthy at retirement as you can, right! This brochure will tell how you can meet this objective and at the same time reduce the amount of income tax you pay now. It explains how Section 79B of the Income Tax Act allows you to make substantial deductions from your taxable income for the money you put into a "Registered Retirement Savings Plan" (as high as $2,500 in some cases).

By making full use of 79B you can lower your income tax by saving more for retirement. It applies not only to those who must arrange their own retirement plans but in many cases to those who are already contributing to group pension plans. Of course, tax still has to be paid on these savings, but not until retirement by which time you will probably be in a lower tax bracket.

Send for your free brochure "Registered Retirement Savings Plan" and put 79B to work for you. Or if you prefer, call the well informed professional from Manufacturers Life. He will give you all the facts on 79B and tell you about a variety of plans that are designed to help you save money for retirement.

New York Uneasy

NEW YORK (AP) — Uneasy over the twin threats of rising interest costs and inflation, the stock market backed away from an early gain.

The lifting of the basic interest rate to 6½ per cent rom 6¼ per cent by commercial banks a week ago led to renewed fears of parallel action by the Federal Reserve Board. This was coupled with the concern over inflation and the possible measures that might be taken by the incoming Nixon administration.

Among blue chips in the Dow industrials, American Telephone lost 1¼; General Electric 1½; General Motors 1¼ and U.S. Steel 1.

Bond-Market Dip Deepened

The approach of the Nixon administration, instead of aiding the already depressed bond market, has made things worse, according to U.S. financial experts, who fear the situation may get even gloomier.

Increase in the U.S. prime banking rates from 6¼ per cent to 6½ per cent last week together with other measures under contemplation to take the heat off the economy have hit hard all those seeking new debt financing.

Municipal bonds are selling at such low levels that their yields have risen to a peace-time record.

HEAVY LOSSES

Heavy losses have been taken on some new issues, and a number of others have been withdrawn before being offered to the public.

The U.S. trend has crossed the border into Canada where prices have drifted lower again. The 4½ per cent government bonds of 1983 — Canada's largest issue — dropped Monday to 74¾, approximately their low of earlier this year.

Mortgage money is also tightening, and one Victoria lender said the best residential rate he could offer was 9¼ percent, "And there isn't too much of it at that."

□

TUNNEL COMPLETED

Granduc Mines completed its 11.6-mile tunnel over the weekend and opened the way for its vast copper mining operation north of Stewart, B.C.

The tunnel runs under mountains and glaciers to the 32,000,000-ton ore body under the Leduc Glacier, and it is expected that the 7,000-tons-a-day mill will be ready for production within a year.

WORLD RECORDS

Over $100,000,000 has already been spent on the project during the past four years. The tunnelling through hard rock was a mighty task that established world records for the speed with which it was accomplished.

Jointly owned by Newmont Mining Corporation and American Smelting and Refining, the Granduc operation has already claimed the lives of 36 persons, including 26 miners in an avalanche.

JAPANESE IN CONTROL

Nanaimo will have a Japanese-controlled sawmill by mid-1970 if partnership plans of the C. Itoh Company and Pacific Logging come to fruition.

Itoh will put up 80 per cent of the cash needed to build the $2,000,000 sawmill, and an agreement will be reached with Pacific Logging (a wholly owned subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments) to supply the logs.

The mill will have a capacity of 50,000,000 board feet of lumber a year. William Sloan, president of Pacific Logging describe the mill as a moderately large one that will employ about 140 persons.

A new company CIPA Sawmills Ltd. is to be created, in which Itoh will have the controlling interest, with Pacific Logging represented on the board.

Sloan said the first meeting of the board was planned for January by which time Itoh hoped to have the approval of the Japanese government to make the overseas investment.

Plans for the mill should be ready for that time, and if there are no delays the mill should be ready for operation by June 1970.

The mill will cut specially for the Japanese market which will be the main consumer of its product.

Site of the plant will be the old Anglo American Eureka Sawmill.

While Japanese interests have taken over various forest industry operations in the B.C. interior, this is believed to be their first major undertaking in the Vancouver Island area in which they will have a controlling interest.

MINORITY INTEREST

Pacific Logging also holds a minority interest in Smith Cedar Products of Victoria and Soake, and in Ladysmith Forest Products, of which Doman Industries is the majority shareholder.

The agreement with Itoh appeared to have a favorable impact upon investors. During Monday's stock market session the preferred shares of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. rose two to a new high 30¾.

CEMENT FIRMS MERGE

Cements Lafarge of Paris is planning to merge its two Canadian subsidiaries — Lafarge Cement of North America and Lafarge Cement Quebec Ltd. — on a share exchange basis.

The Quebec company will be offered two shares of the Vancouver-based Lafarge for each five shares held.

□

INCO TOP PAYER

Dividends paid by Canadian companies in 1968 will reach a record total of $1,461,791,121, an increase of two per cent over the total payments in 1967, and almost five times the pre-war record set up in 1939.

It was the tenth year in a row in which the payments as computed by the Montreal investment firm of J. R. Timmins, established new high levels. The 1968 growth, however, was considerably lower than that of recent years, and reflected to some degree the higher level of taxation imposed during the year on corporation profits.

STILL BIGGEST

International Nickel of Canada continued to be Canada's largest individual divident payer. It distributed over $91,000,000 to its shareholders — or over one quarter of all the country's mining stock dividends.

Bell Telephone's distribution of $87,000,000 to its shareholders put it in second place.

Repair Plant Sale Certain

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Canada has been authorized by the government to sell—on certain conditions—its overhaul base at Winnipeg to one of two Canadian companies which would keep it in operation.

Announcement to this effect was made Monday by Transport Minister Paul Hellyer at a news conference.

It is the latest attempt in a years-long, triangular squabble among the federal and Manitoba governments and Air Canada to ensure continuation of aircraft repair facilities at Winnipeg.

WEEKEND DECISION

Air Canada is concentrating its overhaul work at Montreal. A Manitoba delegation headed by Premier Walter Weir came to Ottawa last week and the federal government's decision was reached during the weekend.

Mr. Hellyer said Northwest Industries Ltd. of Edmonton and Aircraft Industries of Canada Ltd. at St. Johns, Que., have each submitted plans for major development of the Winnipeg overhaul facilities.

Negotiations between Air Canada and these two companies would last for several weeks.

NOTHING ON PAY

Mr. Hellyer said the negotiations involve protection of the interests of present employees, maintenance of the present level of work and provision for further expansion.

He said nothing, however, on whether Air Canada wage scales and pension benefits will be maintained at the Winnipeg base.

Mr. Hellyer said activity at Winnipeg will include present maintenance of Air Canada Viscount planes, additional Air Canada work, repair work from Lockheed California, repair of defence department aircraft and maintenance of other commercial planes.

MORE WORK

In addition, Lockheed had undertaken to place substantial manufacturing and repair work with Manitoba firms.

Mr. Hellyer conceded that the Manitoba air policy committee would have preferred that Air Canada continue to operate the overhaul base itself.

Bi and Bi Recommendations in Full

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, in its report on education tabled Monday in the Commons, recommends that:

● Public education be provided in each of the official minority languages at both the elementary and secondary levels in proposed bilingual districts.

Bilingual districts, establishment of which was proposed in the commission's first report, would be districts where the official-language minority, French or English, makes up at least 10 per cent of the population.

● The normal language of instruction in schools for the official minority-language group in bilingual districts be the mother tongue.

● The mother tongue be taught as a subject in all grades and all programs of the official-language minority schools.

● The majority language be taught as a subject in all programs offered in official-language minority schools.

● The curricula for the official-language minority schools be consistent with the broad outlines of the curricula for the majority language in each province.

● The provincial social studies programs for official-language minority schools be suited to the special circumstances of students attending these schools.

● Requirements and procedures by which an official-language minority living outside the bilingual districts can establish its right to special educational facilities be formally stated by provincial educational departments.

● Official-language minority schools be established in major urban centres whenever the number of minority-language students in the metropolitan area makes this practicable.

● When both types of school exist in the community, the rights of parents to send their children to either the majority-language school or the official-language minority school be recognized.

● The linguistic and cultural character of the official-language minority schools be preserved by limiting, where necessary, the numbers of majority-language students attending these schools.

● The right of the official-language minority to its own schools be dissociated from any consideration of the religious character of these schools.

● No division be created within provincial education departments for the administration of physical services and school finances for official-language minority schools.

● Special divisions, sections, or individuals within provincial education departments be responsible for services in official-language minority schools which directly reflect language or cultural differences. The departments to be organized to ensure collaboration in development of comparable services for minority-language schools.

● Administration of official-language minority schools in Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick be directed by an administrator at the level of associate or assistant deputy minister provided with adequate staff and budget.

● One school board be responsible for administration of all schools at the elementary or secondary level in the school district.

● All official minority-language instruction at the secondary level be removed from the jurisdiction of elementary school boards in Ontario.

● A school board be representative of both majority-language and official minority-language schools whenever the board has both kinds of schools under its jurisdiction.

● The Teachers' College Moncton, N.B., be made the training institution for teachers for official-language minority schools in the Atlantic provinces, and one such training institution be established for the four western provinces.

● Training programs for teachers in French-language minority schools be extended to develop a higher competence in French.

● French-language education at the university level be provided for the French-speaking minority whenever the potential enrolment makes this feasible.

● The University of Ottawa and Laurentian University, Sudbury, Ont., be asked to give priority to increasing the number of degree programs offered in French.

● Federal grant be given to official minority-language students to enable them to study in their own language at a Canadian university outside their province, when courses are not available in their own language within the province.

● For these out-of-province students, a federal grant, equivalent to the normal provincial grant to the university, be paid to the host university or the provincial government concerned.

● Pending resolution of the constitutional problems involved, agreements be concluded between the federal government and the provinces concerned so the latter may receive the help required to meet the special needs of their French-language universities.

● Responsibility for the additional costs involved in providing education in the official minority language be accepted in principle by the federal government.

● The federal grant to each province be based on the number of students attending official-language minority schools in the province, and such grant be 10 per cent of the average cost of education per student within the province.

● The federal grant to Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick be based on the number of students attending official minority-language teacher training institutions, and such grant be 10 per cent of the cost per student, together with 10 per cent of the capital costs for such institutions in the future.

● For students attending the French-language teacher-training institution for the western provinces and for French-speaking students from Newfoundland, P.E.I. and Nova Scotia attending the Teachers' College at Moncton, the federal grant to the province by 25 per cent of the cost per student.

● Further, the federal grant be such as to cover 75 per cent of the capital costs of the West's French-language teacher-training institution and 50 per cent of the capital costs of the Moncton college attributable to out-of-province students.

● The federal grant to the province for official minority-language universities be equal to 10 per cent of the provincial grants — whether operating or capital grants — made to these universities.

● Study of the second official language be obligatory for all students in Canadian schools.

● Second-language courses be planned in a continuous sequential program.

● All programs for the teaching of the second official language be extended to the last year of secondary school.

● As a desirable objective, the second official language be introduced in Grade 1 in English-language schools and in Grade 3 in French-language schools.

● Provincial second-language programs in elementary schools be extended downward by stages until the provinces reach the objective of introducing French in Grade 1 in English-language schools and English in Grade 3 in French-language schools.

● French and English, as second languages, be taught not as foreign languages but with emphasis on the Canadian milieu in which they are used.

● More emphasis be given to Canadian authors and to the Canadian milieu in teaching of French and English as second languages at universities and colleges, especially in introductory courses.

● French and English-language centres be established by provinces for the training of second-language teachers for elementary and secondary schools.

● Basic operating costs of the second-language training centres be paid by the respective provincial governments.

● An interprovincial bureau of second-language training centres be established to co-ordinate the training programs.

● A federal grant be made to the interprovincial bureau of second-language training centres to help meet operating costs of the centres.

● The capital costs of required specialized teaching facilities for second-language training centres be shared by the federal government and the province in which these facilities are constructed, with Ottawa paying at least half the capital costs.

● The equivalent of university entrance in the second official language be a minimum requirement in all provinces for graduates of a teacher-training institution.

● All elementary and secondary school teachers who may teach the second official language be required to complete a course in second-language teaching methods.

● The cost of a one-year transfer program for university students specializing in the second official language be met by the federal government.

● The transfer program for students specializing in the second official language be administered by the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada.

● A language research council concerned with research and development related to second-language teaching in Canada be established by the federal government.

For All Canadian Children

French—Earlier the Better

OTTAWA (CP) — All Canadian children should be required to study the country's second official language in school, starting at the earliest possible age, the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism says in its second report, tabled in the Commons Monday.

The commission says no uniform recommendation on the beginning age is possible, but it suggests, "as a desirable objective," that French be introduced in Grade 1 in English-speaking schools and English in Grade 3 in French-speaking schools.

Gagnon

Dunton

Laurendeau

The reason for this disparity is that French-speaking children have more opportunities to learn English in the general Canadian environment than the English have to learn French, commission co-chairman Jean-Louis Gagnon, 55, told a news conference.

COMPLETE SCHOOL SYSTEMS

The commission also proposes establishment of complete public school systems, embracing both elementary and high school, for French-speaking minorities wherever they exist in substantial numbers in the English-speaking provinces.

This recommendation also endorses such schools for Quebec's English-speaking minority, which have existed since Confederation.

But where extra costs are incurred, the federal government should be prepared to contribute to them for the provinces, the commission recommends.

SUBSIDY SUGGESTED

It suggests a subsidy based on the number of pupils in minority schools and paid at the rate of 10 per cent of the average cost of educating a child in the province concerned.

The federal government has a duty to support the expansion of bilingualism, Mr. Gagnon told the news conference.

Davidson Dunton, 56, president of Carleton University, Ottawa, and the commission's other co-chairman, said the extra costs involved in providing minority schools would be "marginal." The children going to them would need educational facilities and services anyway.

BILINGUAL DISTRICTS

The minority schools would be set up in areas designated as bilingual districts. The royal commission proposed in its first report, issued last December, that census divisions in which the official-language minority accounts for at least 10 per cent of the population be so designated.

The 10-member commission specifically recommends that the minority group's mother tongue be the normal language of instruction in the schools provided for them in bilingual districts.

In the preface to its second report, the commission says "Each provincial government is already trying to provide the best possible education for the children in its province.

"But there are official-language minorities in each province, and provision of the best possible education for these minorities requires special measures."

The commission says in the 125,000-word report "we take it for granted that the co-operation of provincial authorities is assured."

GALLUP POLL FAVORABLE

"Every provincial government has modified, in principle or in fact, its educational system for minorities in the last few years."

As for teaching of the second official language throughout a provincial school system, the commission says the climate of opinion is so favorable that now is the time to press ahead.

It says surveys conducted by the Gallup Poll and others lead to the conclusion that "most Canadians believe that students ought to study he second language of the country in all grades."

When the royal commission was set up by former prime minister Lester Pearson in 1963 it was instructed to recommend, among other things, "what could be done to enable Canadians to become bilingual."

Attempting to answer this question in its second report, it emphasizes the instruction of children in the second official language.

PROVINCIAL NOD NEEDED

Gagnon, a member of the commission since its inception, succeeded the late Andre Laurendeau as co-chairman this fall. It was Laurendeau who, as editor of Montreal Le Devoir, proposed in 1962 that a royal commission study the comparative states of the two major language groups in Canada and suggest how they might be brought closer together in partnership.

Although appointed by Ottawa, the 10-member royal commission is talking mainly to the provinces in this report. It deals with education, strictly a provincial responsibility under Canada's written constitution, the 1867 British North America Act.

Most of its 46 recommendations could be implemented only under provincial authority.

But the commission recommends that the federal government accept, in principle, the responsibility of giving financial help to the public minority schools.

The reason is that "provincial governments will incur additional expense for official language minority education."

However, the principle of federal responsibility for the extra costs of these schools "in no sense implies federal control over education provided by the provinces," the commission insists.

Grants Urged In West

OTTAWA (CP) — For the western Canadian student who wants to seek higher education in French but cannot do so in his own province, the commission recommends a federal grant to enable him to study at any university in the country where courses are given in French.

For the university to which he goes, the commission suggests a federal grant also, equivalent to the normal provincial grant for each student.

On the question of who should be admitted to public minority schools, the commission says parents have a right "to send their children to the school of their choosing."

"Well, mister, that's bad," said the cop, "but it's not all that terrible."

Recovering his voice, the motorist managed to stammer, "It's not the tail light—what's happened to my trailer!"

Rozelle Suspends Six Officials After Error in Crucial Game

Pete Rozelle, U.S. commissioner of pro football, announced Monday the suspension of the six game officials whose mistake cost Los Angeles a down in the Rams' crucial, 17-16, National Football League loss to Chicago Bears Sunday.

The officials were referee Norm Schachter, umpire Joe Connell, head linesman Burl Toler, line judge Jack Fette, back judge Adrian Burk and field judge George Ellis.

Rozelle issued the following statement:

"National Football League game officials erred in not permitting Los Angeles one more down near the end of the Rams' game with the Chicago Bears Sunday.

"A penalty against Los Angeles on the first down of its final series nullified an incomplete pass play. Following three additional incomplete passes by Los Angeles, the ball was turned over to Chicago, thus depriving Los Angeles of a fourth-down play to which it was entitled.

"Los Angeles would have started the fourth down from its own 47-yard line with five seconds to play and 31 yards needed for a first down.

"All six game officials are equally responsible for keeping track of the downs.

"The crew which officiated the Los Angeles-Chicago game is considered among the most competent in pro football. However, because all six must bear responsibility for the error, the entire crew will receive no further assignments for the remainder of the 1968 NFL season, including post-season games."

RAMS ELIMINATED

Also definite is that the Rams won't be one of the clubs in the four-team playoffs. Defeat by the charged-up Bears left them with a 10-2-1 record and made next Sunday's final scheduled game against Baltimore Colts meaningless as far as Coastal Division standings are concerned.

The Colts are 12-1-0 and can afford to take it easy in preparation for the Western Conference final against either the Bears or Minnesota Vikings.

Jack Concannon, the No. 2 Chicago quarterback and the only one of three Bear signal-callers able to return from injuries, limped off the field several times and appeared bothered by the broken collar bone which he suffered earlier in the season but managed to last the distance.

Concannon stayed mainly on the ground after the Bears came from behind to take a 17-7 lead in the third quarter. He ran for crucial yardage himself, including two yards for a touchdown, and got grind-out running from Ron Bull and Brian Piccolo.

LONG RETURN

An 88-yard kickoff return by Clarence Childs and an interception by middle-linebacker Dick Butkus, an inspired performer in a raging Chicago defence, set up Chicago touchdowns by Concannon and Piccolo after Rams had taken a 7-3 lead.

Rams came close by twice blocking punts. The first time they did it came late in the third quarter and it produced only two points from a safety as the ball bounced out of the Chicago end zone.

LED TO TOUCHDOWN

The second blocked punt came in the fourth quarter, and it left the 66,368 Los Angeles fans in a frenzy when it led to a touchdown by quarterback Roman Gabriel, which brought the score to 17-16 when Bruce Gossett converted.

Rams appeared to have it won when they got to the Chicago 32-yard line with seconds remaining. But a second costly holding penalty put them out of field-goal range and they lost their last chance when they also missed the fact they had one down left.

WOULD WIN TITLE

Victory kept the Bears alive in the Central Division race. They are tied with the Vikings at 7-6 going into the last game of the season.

Vikings play the 2-11 Eagles in Philadelphia while Bears host Green Bay Packers. Under NFL rules, Bears will be division champions if both clubs should win, both should lose or both play tie games because they have beaten Vikings twice this season.

Joe Kapp was the star as the Minnesota club stayed alive with a 30-20 win over the 49ers in San Francisco.

The former B.C. Lions' quarterback charged over the San Francisco line for two touchdowns, from two and five yards, and passed to Bill Brown for another touchdown in a game that wasn't decided until Fred Cox kicked his third field goal late in the fourth quarter.

Meanwhile, in the other game that counted, Cleveland Browns clinched the Century Division championship and the right to play Dallas Cowboys in the Eastern Conference final by defeating Washington Redskins, 24-21.

Next games: Wednesday—Montreal at Toronto, Boston at New York, Detroit at Los Angeles, St. Louis at Chicago, Pittsburgh at Minnesota.

Held pointless in Montreal Saturday night after a first-period fracas with John Ferguson which left him with a bruised nose, Bobby Hull came bouncing back in Chicago Sunday night with three goals which provided the difference as the Black Hawks outscored Boston Bruins, 7-4.

It was the 23rd time in his National Hockey League career that Hull had scored at least three goals in one game, putting him within three "hat-tricks" of tying the record set by Maurice Richard.

HOWE GAINS POINT

Hull's outburst gave him 19 goals and 44 points for the season, but he lost a point of his lead in the individual scoring race to the amazing Gordie Howe.

Howe, off to his best-ever start in 23 NHL seasons, scored twice and set up two other goals with perfect passes in New York, where Detroit Red Wings bested the slumping Rangers, 5-2.

The goals were the 13th and 14th of the season and the 701st and 702nd of his NHL career for the 40-year-old Detroit right-winger, who has 38 points from his first 24 games this season.

RACE TIGHTENS

Results tightened the East Division race, leaving Hawks and Wings only six points out of second place, shared by the Rangers and Bruins.

Only three points out of the runner-up spot after Sunday's action are Toronto Maple Leafs, who made it three victories in a row since the confrontation between manager-coach Punch Imlach and club-president Stafford Smythe.

Again led by players Imlach has added to his club in trades, Leafs tramped by Pittsburgh Penguins, 4-1.

Defenceman Pierre Pilote, obtained from the Hawks in exchange for Jim Pappin, scored his first two goals of the season and Murray Oliver, obtained from Boston in exchange for Eddie Shack, scored one goal and made the play for scoring shots by Pilote and Dave Keon.

Another Toronto standout was veteran-goalkeeper John Bower, who came up with some outstanding stops in early action to keep the game scoreless until a power-play chance produced Pilote's first goal.

In other games Sunday, St. Louis Blues extended their unbeaten streak through a 12th game (seven of them ties) by playing to a 4-4 draw with Philadelphia Flyers and Minnesota North Stars took Oakland Seals, 4-1, before 3450 fans in San Francisco's Cow Palace.

West Indies Leads On Lloyd's Century

BRISBANE (Reuters) — Clive Lloyd, playing in his first test in Australia, hit an exhilarating century here Sunday to put the West Indies on top in the first test match.

Lloyd's 129, scored in 209 minutes and, including a six and 18 fours, revived the West Indians' falling second innings. From 93 for four at one stage the West Indies pushed on to 298 for seven at the end of the day—310 runs ahead.

Earlier, Australia lost its remaining five first-innings wickets for only 29 runs as spinners Lance Gibbs and David Holford ran through the tail. Out for 284, Australia trailed by 12 runs on first innings.

Gibbs, taking three wickets Sunday, finished with five for 88.

Lloyd's great innings, during which he was joined by Gary Sobers in a stand of 72 and by Joey Carew in a partnership worth 120, whirled the West Indies to a lead which looks decisive. Australia now needs over 300 second innings runs on a spin-taking pitch.

Monday was a rest day — a break which could not come at a better time for the West Indies, whose initially threadbare attack has been reduced through injury to only two fully-fit men.

Barring an upset, the American Football League schedule this season will be extended by one game — a playoff between Kansas City Chiefs and the defending-champion Oakland Raiders for the Western Division title.

The two clubs remained deadlocked in first place on Sunday, the Chiefs looking impressive with a 40-3 rout of San Diego Chargers and the Raiders getting by Denver Broncos, 33-27, with the help of four field goals and three converts by ageless George Blanda.

Raiders dominated their game, getting 159 yards rushing, 338 yards in passing and another 389 yards in the return of punts and kickoffs but could never assume a safe lead.

Six interceptions and three touchdown passes by Len Dawson made the Kansas City triumph easy.

If both Chiefs and Raiders win their remaining game, they will settle the division title in Oakland on Sunday, Dec. 22.

Mann Averts Disaster To Repeat in Carspiel

EDMONTON (CP)—Merv Mann of Saskatoon, who called the shots for Vern Larson, Russ Lindberg and Gary Stevenson, won the Canadian open carspiel on Sunday by defeating Bob Pickering of Milestone, Sask., 10-6.

It was the second successive victory for Mann, the only two-time winner in the four-year-old history of the event. Mann was the runner-up to Hec Gervais of Edmonton in 1965.

Mann was in early difficulties in the final. Pickering stole two points on the first end and Mann saved disaster on the second end when he drew to shot rock on the button with his last rock and Pickering counting five.

Pickering took a 3-1 lead on the third end but Mann tied it on the fourth, then took control by stealing two points on both the fifth and sixth ends.

Olympians Sixth In Seattle Meet

PUYALLUP, Wash. — Victoria Olympians' 19-member team placed sixth out of 13 entries Sunday in the Seattle Triton Swim Club invitational meet.

Tim Cairney, competing in the 13-14 age class, was the outstanding Olympian, picking up seconds in the butterfly, individual medley and free-style events.

His younger brother, Matt, also qualified for three finals but had to withdraw because of illness.

Mary Pat Pumfrey scored Victoria's only win with a victory in the open 200-yard breaststroke event.

In other open events, Vito Dunford was second in the men's 200-yard breaststroke while Jim Gollmer placed third in the invididual medley and sixth in both the 100 and 200-yard freestyle events.

Soviet Hockey Coaches Willing to Share Fitness Secrets

MOSCOW (CP) — Coaches of two Soviet national hockey teams that have just finished giving Canada's national team a few lesson may go to Canada next year to help train the Canadian team.

Gordon Juckes, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association manager, says that Anatoly Tarasov, coach of the Soviet No. 1 team, and Arkady Chernishov, mentor of the No. 2 team, have offered "to go over to Canada as advisers for one month next year."

Juckes said the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation had indicated it would approve the idea. The proposal still needed Canadian acceptance.

Juckes said the Russians would "show us how they train their players—differently from ours—and how they get their physical conditioning."

Juckes was interviewed just after the Soviet No. 2 team had blanked the visiting Canadians 4-0 in an exhibition game. It was the fifth match for the Canadians in Moscow and they lost all except one—a 2-2 tie with Finland last Tuesday.

The No. 2 Soviet team beat the Canadians 8-1 Friday and 5-4 the previous Sunday. The Canadians also lost 6-0 to the Soviet No. 1 team Wednesday.

The Canadians scored only seven goals and gave up 25 in their seven days here.

Team coach Jackie McLeod said after Saturday's game that the players now see what they will be up against in the world championships in Stockholm, Sweden, next spring.

"I had tried to tell them over and over back in Canada, but they wouldn't believe me. They thought I was trying to frighten them," McLeod said.

"Now they know how tough these guys are."

McLeod noted that the Canadians held the Soviet players scoreless for the last 40 minutes of Saturday's game—their best defensive showing of the series. He thought his team is improving despite a gruelling schedule.

He also reported that several of his players said they found the No. 2 Soviet team stronger than the veteran No. 1 squad.

Juckes said he "wasn't particularly disappointed" by the Canadian showing.

"We have some strong players back in Canada who didn't come to Moscow for this series."

A representative Soviet team will visit Canada beginning Jan. 17 for a total of eight games in Montreal, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Vancouver and perhaps Toronto and Victoria, Juckes said.

He thought the big differences between the Canadian and Russian players is the playing tempo, which he credited to the Russian conditioning and physical development programs.

"You have to do more than teach a boy to play hockey these days. You have to develop his body to the maximum through weight-lifting and physical exercises as the Russians do. All their players are in superb condition."

Sidelined Again

Injuries continue to plague Rod Gilbert's career in the National Hockey League. The New York Ranger player suffered a broken left ankle and torn ligaments Saturday against Toronto Maple Leafs and will be out of action from four to six weeks. Rangers have called up Wayne Rivers from Buffalo to replace him.

Joyous Kapp Fans Grounded, Amazed at Pilot's Decision

From CANADIAN PRESS

VANCOUVER — Followers of the B.C. Lions have really had only one chance to whoop it up since quarterback Joe Kapp, who led Lions to the Canadian Football League championship in 1965, left for the greener pastures of the National Football League.

That chance came Sunday, when Kapp and his Minesota Vikings were billed for a crucial NFL game in San Francisco against the 49ers.

One hundred and eighteen football, or Kapp, fans, mostly members of Vancouver's Top of the Marc Athletic Club, and including several Victorians, chartered a Pacific Western Airlines plane Friday so they could be on hand to cheer their former hero.

FLYING HIGH

Some were still flying high after their plane landed in the California city, and were so high on Sunday when they were scheduled for the return trip to Vancouver that the captain of their charter flight kept them out of the sky.

The flight was postponed until Monday morning for safety reasons and most passengers arrived home Monday afternoon.

"I had no other choice, particularly after the warning we got when we landed," explained Captain Henry Schindler, one of PWA's top pilots.

"These people were wandering around the airport buildings drinking. In the plane they wouldn't sit down or stop smoking. The sheriff's officers and the Federal Aviation Agency people were observing everything and I'm sure the tower would never have given us clearance for the takeoff."

Schindler said that when the plane landed in San Francisco the crew was warned by U.S immigration officials "not to bring in another bunch like this."

A night on the town Saturday and Kapp's heroics in the game — he scored two touchdowns and passed for another major score in a 30-20 Minnesota victory — did nothing to curb early enthusiasm.

"When it came time for the (Sunday) takeoff, "Schindler said, "about one third of the people were all right but the rest were pretty bad."

When it was announced that the flight had been cancelled "because of drunkenness among passengers," some passengers headed for the bar, about 40 managed to get on scheduled flights Sunday night, some wondered what all the fuss was about and fretted over explanations to be made, and some were indignant.

"I've flown all over the world, one attractive female passenger was reported as complaining, "and I've been absolutely flat-out drunk but nothing like this has happened before."

Also distressed was Vancouver-broadcaster Jim Macdonald, organizer of the charter flight.

SAYS MOVE 'ABSURD'

"If people were drunk they should have been arrested and charged," he said. "It's absurd to believe that so many were so drunk as to make flying hazardous."

Among the passengers were assistant-coach Jackie Parker, flanker Sonny Homer and end Jim Carphin of the Lions and Herb Capozzi, Social Credit MLA for Vancouver Centre and former general-manager of the Lions, who operates the Top of the Marc Athletic Club.

Asked Monday night for a comment about the trip, Capozzi replied that "we have made a report to Pacific Western Airlines and they have agreed to make an investigation" and that there would be no further comment until results of the investigation are known.

"We were rather amazed by the cancellation, "Capozzi said." A minority might have been over-exuberant but nobody mentioned a cancellation untill we'd been sitting in the plane for an hour. The whole thing was mushroomed into a big thing by one member of the crew — not the captain. He didn't even come out to talk to anybody."

Sandy Wellbourn, spokesman for PWA, said in Vancouver that airport officials and inspectors from the U.S. Federal Aviation Agency "were quite concerned" over the situation.

He added that "Captain Schindler was quite within his rights" in calling off the flight."

"It appears, however," Wellbourn said, "that only a minority of the group was involved. Some passengers conscientiously tried to keep others in line."

In the only other game, Adult Studies stayed ahead of last place King's Hotel as the two teams played to a 2-2 tie.

Excitement Too Much For Coach

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Phil Handler, 69, a Chicago Bears' assistant football coach since 1933, collapsed and died Sunday at his home moments after watching on television a close Bears' game.

The Bears defeated Los Angeles Rams, 17-16.

Handler's personal physician said the coach had been suffering from a heart ailment for some time, and had been forbidden to attend games.

Something as simple as a new Shell air filter can give you 10% better mileage.

At Shell, we know all about such things. Because mileage is our business.

We know that your car engine needs about 7,500 gallons of air for every gallon of gasoline for top performance.

A dirty air filter blocks the air flow. You waste gasoline and your mileage could drop by as much as 10%.

The remedy takes about 5 minutes.

Just ask your Shell dealer to have a look. If you need a new air filter, he can install a Shell filter while you wait.

Result: You'll go farther, your engine will run more smoothly and you could cut your gasoline bill by up to 10%. You could save $1 for every $10 of gasoline.

Our 32 mileage secrets

You'll go farther with a clean air filter, new spark plugs and the right tire pressure. These are three of our 32 mileage secrets.

Read them all in our free book, 32 Secrets. Your Shell dealer will give you a copy. And he'll help you solve your mileage problems.

We want everything right with your car when we fill your tank, so Super Shell can really show off.

Super Shell for good mileage

Super Shell gasoline has five ingredients for good mileage.

(1) Platformate contains extra-energy petroleum molecules.

(2) TCP works to keep spark plugs from misfiring.

(3) Butane helps you start quickly. And the quicker you start the less gasoline you use before you get going.

(4) A detergent fights the deposits that can build up inside the carburetor. These deposits reduce mileage.

(5) Mixed Pentanes help your engine warm up quickly to prevent misfiring, bucking, coughing and wasted fuel.

If you'd like to go farther, the man to see is your Shell dealer. For advice. For a free copy of 32 Secrets. And for Super Shell.

Commons Rules Dispute

Round One to NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — The opposition won the opening round Monday in the Commons battle over rule changes.

As a result, the scheduled Tuesday start of the debate on rule changes may be delayed.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux took under consideration an argument by Stanley Knowles, NDP whip, that the government is not entitled to proceed in the way it is with rule changes.

GOING BACK 100 YEARS

He cited precedents going back 100 years to bolster his case.

The opposition takes strong objection to a government-proposed new rule which would permit the government, in event of disagreement with the opposition, to cut off debate on any measure within two hours.

Knowles, long an expert on Commons rules, argued that the government should not have placed a package proposal before the Commons through the report of a special committee.

BITTER ABOUT ONE

Knowles said he favors many rule changes proposed in the report but bitterly opposes one of them.

The Commons should be able to deal with the changes one by one instead of having to decide on all of them in a single vote.

Donald Macdonald, government House leader, argued that there are precedents for the government's action.

Knowles said the Commons has always gone into full committee for discussion of major and permanent overhaul of the rules.

PACKAGE MOTION

He said the one exception was in 1913 when the Conservative government of Sir Robert Borden presented a package motion for changes. Liberal opposition leader Sir Wilfrid Laurier had strongly condemned the government.

Knowles said the method of proceeding used by the government is contrary to the privileges of Parliament.

Changing rules could not be done by "sudden-death" motion but only by referring to proposed changes to a committee of the whole Commons.

Macdonald argued that the special 12-member committee which drafted the rule changes was better able to perform the task than the whole Commons.

Knowles said the government is using a "disguised" way of dealing with a complicated matter with a single vote.

It was the Speaker's duty to prevent such a move.

Macdonald said the opposition is entitled to move an amendment to refer the committee report back to the committee.

GOVERNMENT REPORT

With its majority, the government could, of course, over-ride any such amendment.

The committee report is in effect a government report because the opposition refused to go along with it.

Museums: Changes Not Firings

OTTAWA (CP) — A policy of having bilingual commissionaires dealing with the public in national museums may cause some change in duties among present staff but no dismissals, a government official said Monday.

He said he had been assured by the museums corporation there would be no firings in connection with the bilingual policy.

Communications

Cost Estimate Vague For First Satellite

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said Monday the first stage of Canada's communications satellite project could cost anywhere between $60,000,000 and $160,000,000.

The first satellite of the program, which would relay voice and picture signals across Canada, is expected to be launched in 1971 or 1972, he told the Commons transport committee.

Kierans said his cost estimate was "vague" because decisions had not yet been made on how sophisticated the first satellite should be.

FORM NEW DEPARTMENT

The cost would depend on whether Canada wanted to install all foreseeable services in the first stage of the program, or work for a later stage.

John Chapman, head of the planning group of the proposed department of communications, said the cost would depend on the number of television channels to be serviced by the satellite, and the number and kinds of earth stations built.

A communications department is expected to be formed from a government reorganization bill scheduled for presentation to the Commons in January.

The satellite communications system would be "a tremendous boon to the uniting and building together of the country," Kierans said.

Mounted Police Force Students Off Campus

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mounted police helped force hardcore demonstrators from rain-soaked San Francisco State College Monday following a rock attack on two campus buildings.

Meanwhile, interim president S. I. Hayakawa announced he was relaxing some of his stringent rules involving dissident students.

The campus of 18,000 students was relatively quiet for the start of the second week of classes since Hayakawa reopened the school.

Labor and community leaders huddled off campus and made some recommendations aimed at resolving the crisis which has kept the campus in turmoil since Nov. 6. Among them was the hiring of Ronald Haughton, a nationally known labor mediator, to deal with demands of students and the American Federation of Teachers.

Lines of helmeted police cleared the campus of demonstrators on a dark, rainy day and about 20 mounted police chase retreating elements from nearby street. This was the first time mounted police were used during a local campus disturbance.

Some 300 officers swept across the stike-torn campus on foot after a group of 200 militants heaved rocks and bricks through windows of the social science and administration and business buildings.

BERNE (Reuters) — A small outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease has hit southern Switzerland, and 25 head of cattle have already been killed, it was announced.

Schoolgirls Weep At Murder Link

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI) — Two school girls burst into tears Monday when a forensic expert testified strands of their clothing were found on the bodies of two small boys they are accused of murdering.

Norma, 13, and Mary Bell, 11, broke down and sobbed for the first time since they were brought to trial Thursday on charges of strangling Martin Brown, 4, and Brian Howe, 3. Both girls, who are not related, have pleaded not guilty.

Forensic expert Dr. Norman Lee testified that fibres from Mary Bell's clothing were found on Martin's clothing when his body was found last May 25 in one of the rat-infested derelict houses of a run-down sector of Newcastle know as "Rat Alley."

SHOES, CLOTHING

Lee testified that fibres from one of Norma's skirts were found on the shoes Brian wore when his body was found two months later in the same area. Mary's clothing bore fibres from the clothing Brian was wearing the day he died, Lee said.

At this point the two girls burst into tears. Norma covered her eyes with her hands, refusing a handkerchief offered by a policewoman.

Mary dabbed at her eyes with a rumpled hankerchief which she twisted nervously around her fingers. She kept her head bowed for six minutes, sobbing until Judge Ralph Cusack recessed the trial until Tuesday.

'STARTED TO GRIN'

The two girls were then led away by two policemen and a policewoman.

Earlier in the day, Mrs. June Brown, Martin's mother, told the court Mary led her to her son's body, then called at the Brown home three days later, asking to see the boy "in his coffin."

"She started to grin, to smile," Mrs. Brown said. "I was just astonished that such a young child should want to see a baby dead." Mrs. Brown said she then slammed the door on Mary.

'BOTH LAUGHING'

Mrs. Rita Finlay, Martin's aunt, testified that the two accused girls came to her house after Martin's body was found and asked if she missed the boy and if she cried for him.

Mrs. Finlay said the two were "both laughing as if it were a huge joke."

Pathologist Dr. Bernard Thomilson said an attempt apparently had been made to carve the letters "M W" into Brian's body with a razor blade.

DISINTERESTED

Norma glanced frequently around the packed courtroom, seemingly disinterested in the proceedings. Her father sat directly behind her.

Mary fidgeted nervously with her hands and feet. Behind her sat her slender blonde mother, burly father and her grandmother.

St. Joseph's Plans 400 Beds for Academy Grounds

Hospital Looks Next Door

By DESMOND BILL

Planning is now in progress for a new 400-bed acute-care hospital on the grounds of St. Ann's Academy, to replace the outdated St. Joseph's Hospital.

St. Joseph's Hospital executive director Dr. E. G. Q. Van Tilburg said Monday that the Sisters of St. Ann had indicated they would make about six acres of the academy grounds available for the new hospital.

It was also announced Monday that the sisters had chosen a site adjacent to St. Joseph's Hospital for a new extended-care unit to replace the existing Mount St. Mary Hospital.

★ ★ ★

Construction of both new hospitals will be dependent on the approval of the regional hospital board. Construction of the acute-care hospital will also depend on voter approval of expenditure for its construction.

Dr. Van Tilburg said about six acres of land on the academy grounds would be sold as a site for the replacement for St. Joseph's Hospital.

The city proposes to extend Belleville Street through the academy grounds, and the land for the new hopital will lie to the north of this new road.

★ ★ ★

At present, the Sisters of St. Ann hold title to St. Joseph's Hospital and its site, but their equity in the property has diminished over the years with each investment by the British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service in the hospital.

The new site would be sold by the sisters to the regional hospital board, which would then hold title to the hospital, although the sisters would continue to be involved in its operation.

However, a new society to operate the new hospital is being incorporated, along the lines of the society that operates Royal Jubilee Hospital.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Van Tilburg said the sisters were confident they would be able to continue to operate St. Ann's Academy on the reduced acreage left to them after the hospital site was cut off.

Valuation of the property for the hospital site is now being made, but its sale will likely not take place for a long time.

For one thing, the regional hospital board referendum earlier this year was only for funds to develop extended-care facilities. A new referendum for acute-care hospitals would be required before the hospital board could buy a site for a new hospital.

Dr. Van Tilburg said present plans called for construction of a 400-bed hospital to replace the existing 429-bed hospital. A two-year study has resulted in completion of detailed space requirements for such a modern hospital.

The proposed extended-care unit to replace Mount St. Mary will go up at Collinson and Rupert, adjacent to both St. Joseph's Hospital and its replacement.

The extended-care hospital, which would provide 200 beds as against 129 at present, would be in a separate building from the acute-care hospital, and separately administered.

The sisters will actually provide the land for this new facility, although its construction will be paid for out of the funds approved in this year's extended-care referendum.

Sister Mary Justinian, administrator of Mount St. Mary, said the future of the old hospital was already under study, but it would definitely not continue as a hospital.

UVic Team Points to Results

Public School Urged For Indian Children

By BILL STAVDAL

A team of University of Victoria education professors has suggested that Indian children attending school on reserves should join the public school system.

Reserve schools could be used as adult education centres, the report proposes.

The recommendations were made by a three-member team of educators headed by Dr. Charles Galloway of the faculty of education.

Dr. Galloway, in co-operation with Tsartlip Indian band administrator Thomas Sampson, last summer organized a four-week school for Indian children of the Saanich Peninsula.

BASIC SKILLS

Held in the Tsartlip Indian School near Brentwood, the course taught basic classroom skills to about 50 pre-schoolers and older children.

Working with Dr. Galloway were Mrs. Norma Mickelson, assistant professor of education at UVic, and Mrs. Daphne Birchfield of Tacoma, experienced in the U.S. Head Start program for pre-school children.

They had the help of six teenage Indian girls from Saanich Peninsula reserves to whom they gave high credit for the success of the summer school.

Mrs. Mickleson

SENTENCES, NOT WORDS

The teachers and their aides worked at increasing the vocabulary of the children and getting them to speak in sentences instead of in single words or gestures.

They exercised the youngsters in reasoning, interested them in books and encouraged them "to realize that they might be successful in school."

The teenagers acted as classroom helpers, playground supervisors and as liaison with the Indian community.

One of its conclusions was that aides were essential in any such program.

PARENT EDUCATION

Another conclusion:

"Community involvement and parent education, together with essential minimum standards of health and safety for each child, appear to be essential . . ."

Involvement of the Indian community is another priority in any educational program for Indian children and adults, the university team concluded.

The report says that Indian children educated on the reserve in isolation from the larger community tend to show learning difficulties which get worse as time passes.

Trash Collection Soon Weekly Within Saanich

Saanich council Monday evening instituted weekly garbage collection in 1969 and deferred decision on the larger issue of whether or not it should be done privately or publicly — an issue which has split council for more than three years.

The present collector, L. S. McNutt, will continue on a weekly rather than a two-week basis. His charge will be increased from the present $11 per household per year to $18. In addition, Saanich will pay the disposal fees at Hartland Road dump which is owned by Victoria Disposal Ltd., the firm which collects and disposes of garbage in Victoria.

Saanich council was told Monday that the disposal fees would amount to $7,000 in 1969.

VOTERS IN FAVOR

Weekly rather than fortnightly collection of garbage was an issue Saturday when Saanich voters balloted 3,394 to 2,499 in favor.

Municipal Clerk Gordon Hayward told members of council Monday that the referendum could be considered an expression of opinion and was not necessarily mandatory upon council, but that the voters, with 58 per cent in favor, had certainly indicated how they felt.

Mr. McNutt, who has had the Saanich garbage collection contract on an annual basis for a number of years, said that his force of 36 men in summer and 22 in winter was collecting from about 18,000 households in Saanich.

PROBLEM TOO MUCH

He added that new restrictions by the Metropolitan Board of Health, which will forbid burning at dumps after the new year, will make the disposal problem more difficult, and that he could not handle collection and disposal costs for $18. Accordingly, the municipality would have to provide for disposal.

The matter of whether or not the municipality should establish its own collection system, long a controversial question in Saanich, will be discussed by the council's public works committee at an early meeting.

India May Repeat

Cold Trip Kills Gift Crocodiles

Two three-month-old crocodiles, a gift to the people of B.C. from India, succumbed to cold during their long air journey to Victoria, it was reported here Monday.

★ ★ ★

Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the provincial museum, noted the two-14-inch-long reptiles were sent in a glass case. He said normally they would travel with greatest safety in insulated containers.

L. J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, said the donors would be advised to the mishap and added that two more crocodiles might be sent. They were intended as a gift from the state of Rajastan in appreciation of the more than $200,000 raised by B.C. school children in 1967.

★ ★ ★

The money was used to send mobile classrooms to underdeveloped parts of the world, including two to India.

Job Approved

The education department gave formal approval Monday to a $179,555 contract for expansion of Hillcrest elementary school in Gordon Head. The project will be carried out by Bird Construction Ltd. of Victoria.

Films Shown At School

Films on Germany and Switzerland will be presented Friday and Saturday by lecturer-moviemaker Ray Green at Oak Bay junior high school.

The films are part of the Greater Victoria school board's World Around Us series.

Germany: Old and New will be seen at 8 p.m. Friday in the school auditorium, and Amazing Switzerland at the same time Saturday.

Afternoon Blaze Levels Sawmill

Fire ripped through a Victoria sawmill late Monday afternoon and within 15 minutes the building was reduced to a shell.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said the Ideal Sawmill on Tyee Road was "almost immediately" destroyed after Victoria Fire Department received an alarm at 5:34 p.m.

Firemen with three trucks fought the blaze but the wood and aluminum sheet building was beyond help. Some of the equipment may be salvaged, said Assistant Chief John Stewart.

Blobs of melted aluminum lay in the wreckage after the blaze subsided.

No estimate of damage was available late Monday night from the fire department or the sawmill's manager, Hardy Mann.

Origin of the fire was not known. Mr. Mann said this would have to wait till the ruins could be examined today.

The mill is owned by Mohan Singh of 98 Sims.

The mill, which employs three full-time workers, turns out rough lumber.

Tiny Strike Felt

By DON COLLINS

It might go down in Victoria history as the smallest strike of them all. But its weight has been felt — all the way to Vancouver.

When the trouble began less than two months ago down at Hy-Fidelity Photos Ltd., 750 Discovery, there were nine employees. When it came time for a government-supervised strike vote there were three.

The strike, for a first contract with the Teamsters Union, began 13 days ago after two persons voted in favor of such action and one voted otherwise.

It was all very quiet at first with just two pickets parading without trouble outside the Hy-Fidelity plant, which the Teamsters say is really just part of the Mortifee Munshaw Photo Services operation.

Jim Scott of Vancouver, Western Conference representative with the Teamsters, said one upshot by last week was "the complete tying up" of operations at the larger Mortifee Munshaw plant in Vancouver.

The Teamsters said that only experienced color photo men at the Victoria plant were on strike and that all color film was being sent to the Vancouver plant for processing. They picketed the Vancouver plant and idled about 100 employees. But before the second day was up the pickets were removed by a court injunction.

The Teamsters made little headway after they were certified as bargaining agent for the Victoria workers. They sought parity with Vancouver wages of roughly $2.50 an hour for inside workers but were offered much less, Mr. Scott said.

Mr. Scott said the company laid off six of the nine employees in the midst of an 18-day waiting period that followed a conciliation officer's report.

Mr. Scott said the employees had been told there wasn't enough work for them. As a result, the union served a 48-hour strike notice. There have been no moves toward a new round of negotiations.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married nearly 50 years. Joe has always had "girl friends" and I'm sure the reason our married life has been so wonderful is because I have never been jealous or suspicious.

Not that Joe has ever been unfaithful, but when we are with a group he makes it a point to seek out a sad widow or an unhappy divorcee or a maiden lady who has lost confidence in her ability to attract a man. He takes her to a quiet corner of the room and tells her she is lovely, interesting company and that he has always admired her. I have seen these tight-lipped women come alive as Joe talks to them.

Personality Changed

Recently we were having dinner in a restaurant. Our waitress was a stony-faced sourpuss who greeted us with a chip on her shoulder the size of a two-by-four. Joe said to her, "The proprietor of this establishment is fortunate to have a woman of your charm and dignity working here." She broke out in a broad smile. Her entire personality changed. She gave us superb service.

These women need a kind word — and that's all Joe gives them. I'd bet my life on it. The world would be a better place if more men were like my Joe. Don't you agree Ann? — PROUD OF HIM

Dear Proud: Indeed I do, but Joe is only half of it. You are the half that makes Joe's half possible. An orchid to you for your insight.

□

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think this letter is a joke. I'll bet loads of kids around the country would like to ask this question but don't have the nerve.

When a person wears braces on his teeth, should he smile with his mouth open or shut? Please answer soon. We have to take pictures for the school yearbook and I want to look my best. Thank you.— SPARKLE PLENTY

Only Three Big Grins

Dear Plenty: I checked two yearbooks and counted only three broad grins that showed braces. I'm certain dozens of kids concealed their braces by smiling with their mouths closed. For those who are self-conscious about the hardware the closed-mouth smile is best.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married one month and I hate it. I hate doing dishes and ironing clothes and cooking. I didn't hate doing these things when I was home but I hate it now.

I am 16 and my husband is 19. I despise him for talking me into getting married. I quit school because he made it sound like being married would be so much fun. It's not fun, it's work. He lied to me.

I am not asking for advice. I know what I am going to do. I am just writing to say I was sure I was an exception but I was wrong. Getting married at 16 is rotten and I'm getting out as soon as I can figure how. Sign me.—DUMB LOU

Dear Lou: You didn't ask for advice so I won't offer it. I'm printing your letter for the benefit of others for whom it is not too late. Are you listening out there?

Gas-Up Game Empty

A service station is the last place you'd expect to play games.

For years it was all they could do to keep track of the key to the women's room. (I never understood why the men's side was public, but the women's side was bolted like Fort Knox.)

The point is today those poor attendants are busier than one-armed paperhangers. As I was saying to my friendly service station operator, Ernie, the other day, "Ernie, you can't keep going like this."

He wiped his hands off on his coveralls. "I know. I was here this morning at 5:30 to cover my mums and trim the greenery around the grease rack. Then I had to tidy up the waiting room, clean the restrooms and unpack my glasses. Did I tell you we're giving glass beer mugs to anyone who buys four snow tires or more?"

"Oh yes, and balloons for the kiddies. I think this is even bigger than our yo yo-rain bonnet promotion. Oh my goodness I forgot to give you your What's-His-Face entry. Here, if you match up the mouths of the Four Presidents on Mount Rushmore you win a chance to play The Greed Game . . ."

"Really, all I want today is . . .

"I don't know where my mind is today. Let me check your car registration against our list to see if you've won in our Mad Money competion. Yesterday, a little old lady in a 1936 Willys won a lube job."

"I am in a hurry and . . ."

"While I'm checking for Mad Money, I'll get your Stripe Stamps. We're giving a bonus of 50 stamps today for every car that has a bumper sticker reading, 'Ho Chi Minh Wears SupHose.' They add up, don't they?"

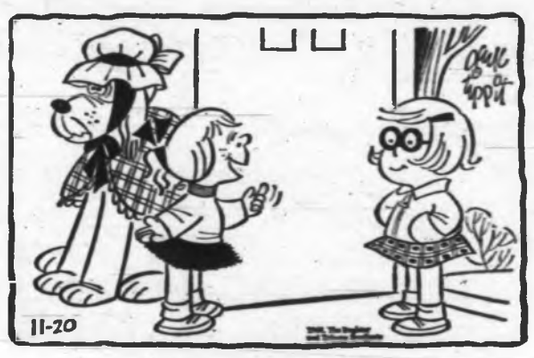

"Really, Ernie, all I need is . . .

"Let's see now, you got your entry blank for Auto Bingo Sweepstakes, didn't you? It's a fun thing really. My customers just live it. All they do is check their card against the card that is televised. The show comes on Sunday morning at 5:30. Could I change your oil today? You get a rubber duck fory our bath with every oil change. You won't forget to bring the kids in Saturday, will you? Beepie the Clown is going to be here to help wash the cars and we'll have popcorn and Hawaiian leis . . . Have I forgotten anything? The beer mugs, the Whats-His Face ticket, the Greed Game, the Mad Money list, the Stripe Stamps bonus, the Auto Bingo Sweepstakes and the rubber duck. Will that be all?"

"How about a few gallons of gas, Ernie?"

"Oh, I am sorry," he said. "We don't carry gas anymore. After all, I've only got two hands. I can't do everything."

A Lovelier You

By MARY SUE MILLER

A realer asks: Can a woman with grey hair successfully wear grey? Or is it old-making?

The answer: Not to wear one of fashion's new greys, if your hair is grey, would be to miss a beauty bet. Ranging from pale platinum to pewter and steel, the shades are beautiful. There's a patina about them that creates a superb background for the grey head.

★ ★ ★

Generally speaking, grey fabrics with a much deeper or lighter tonality than that of your hair make for striking effect. Of course the hair must be as lustrous as the fabric. Come to think of it, drab, indeterminate or yellowing shades of grey hair are at odds with any fashion color.

A gleaming tinted rinse, silver to steel, keeps grey tresses up to form. When the hair's health flags, conditioning treatments are also in order.

It could be that with grey attire the skin needs sparking. For the purpose, try an "apricot tint" of transparent face color under a natural beige fluid foundation. This gives both fair and dark skins a warm, natural glow with a magical illusion of no makeup at all.

The with-it eye shadow is colored mushroom, a subtle mixture of earthy beige and cloud white. Add transparent lip color in a deep, rich golden red.

That way something marvelous comes of grey hair and grey.

Ankle Should Be Invisible

Pants Suits Too Short?

NEW YORK — Last year lots of women were still wearing their skirts too long, and this year they are wearing their pants suits too short. A pair of pants that shows as much as a sliver of ankle is a real crime against fashion.

"Pants ought to cover the instep and, especially for evening, cover the heel, too," says Luis Palacio, who runs a men's boutique on Third Avenue but also makes pants for such customers as Jacqueline Onassis, among others.

The evening pants Stephen Smith took over to Greece for Mrs. Onassis were cut to cover everything but her toes. One of them is black velvet with a gold chain belted tunic, and the crepe with pleated sleeves and legs is tri-color with a white top and one leg black and the other red.

★ ★ ★

"I prefer evening pants worn with no shoes at all, or at least the lowest heels," Palacio says. "They ought to come right down to the floor behind."

The pants suit that seemed to be such an easy, all purpose solution for any place, anytime is turning out to be much more tricky than it looked at first. Not every pants suit will do, and if the type is right, the fit still has to be perfection.

Pants suits with a breezy, yachty, middy and bell-bottom shape look all out of place in the evening, even if the fabric is white satin. The best looking evening pants are more like dresses than pants. Most of them are soft, black and elegant.

★ ★ ★

At the nostalgic festival of old Youmans, Coward and Arlen songs at the Metropolitan Opera House and Philharmonic Hall Sunday night, Elieth Roux's evening pants were among the most effective. The slacks were black crepe and the top a sleeveless sweater of big, blue spangles.

Her slacks were the length she advises for her customers at Bergdorf Goodman. They reach the instep but still show part of the heel.

★ ★ ★

At the same party Mrs. Wyatt Cooper's black crepe pants suit with the Pierrot ruffles was Adolfo's latest. Adolfo's beautifully correct pants hang absolutely straight and just graze the top of the shoes.

Mrs. Reny (Ellin) Saltmann's Saint Laurent pants were very full and right down to the ground under the beaded, tunic top.

The offbeat setting of Sunday night's party, with the ruby carpeted floors of the Metropolitan Opera House turned into a three tier dinner party, made absolute duds of the safe little zipped-up-the back crepes and brocades.

□

Blonde fashion model, Kathy McKeaney, can't give a dinner party this season. Too bad, but her dining room is full of the ruanas that women have suddenly gone crazy about.

Kathy discovered the ruana in Bogota, but the colors were dreary. She ordered a few ruanas handloomed in shades like shocking, emerald, and orange ice and brought them back to friends. That's the way it all started.

★ ★ ★

Jeanne Amory and Pat Gillespie launched it in their new boutique, The Very Thing, Fifth Avenue stores followed an dat least one will have a window soon. Kathy has hardly enough time to model for Bonnie Cashin, Bill Blass and her other favorites.

Unlike the Mexican poncho, the ruana doesn't go on over the head and muss a hairdo, and the wool is softer. It's perfect to wear over a pants suit, which has helped to make it popular. There are dozens of other ways to wear a ruana, and it's as good as a crossword puzzle to find them.

Wayward Sisters:

Mansion Better Than Detention

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The Brophy sisters, Mary Ann, 14, and Nancy, 13, have decided life with their family in their $300,000 mansion isn't so bad after all.

The girls, after spending a summer at a riding academy and boarding school, told a judge in juvenile court they would not return home because the mansion was the scene of wild parties and was "in a constant state of uproar."

On Nov. 4 a judge told them to choose between their home or juvenile hall. They chose juvenile hall but after four days in the detention home they said their tale of wild parties had been exaggerated and asked to return home.

On Friday, Superior Court Judge Edward R. Brand placed the girls on a year's probation and told them to obey their mother.

"It's wonderful to have them back," said Gloria Brophy Baker, who has five other children.

'Couldn't Spurn Distraught Girls'

VANCOUVER (CP) — John McPherson Campbell, 66, pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Monday to three counts of procuring an abortion.

He also admitted being sentenced to one year in jail in 1942, five years in 1950 and seven years in 1958 for similar offences.

★ ★ ★

Magistrate J. J. Anderson reserved decision until Wednesday.

Defence lawyer Del Black told the court Campbell couldn't turn away distraught young girls threatening suicide.

He criticized Canada's abortion laws as antiquated and said there was legislation before Parliament to liberalize them.

★ ★ ★

He said Campbell was a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Kansas City and was a former member of the British Columbia Naturopathic Association.

The prosecution said Campbell had never been registered as a medical practitioner in B.C. and was stricken from the roles of the B.C. Naturopathic Association in 1950.

'Brick Wall' Too Quiet A Listener

LONDON (AP) — Pamela Jeeves demanded a divorce Monday because her husband wouldn't argue with her.

"It was like talking to a brick wall," said Judge Lloyd Jones. Mrs. Jeeves carried on a tirade into the small hours but her husband Basil just sat there listening.

★ ★ ★

The judge said that when, two weeks later, Mrs. Jeeves decided to leave, it was the husband's lack of responsiveness rather than any cruelty which made up her mind.

The judge ruled that just to sit listening is not a marital crime. He refused Mrs. Jeeves's application for a divorce, but gave one to her husband on ground of her desertion.

The couple had been married five years. There were no children.

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—Anna Mannion joked that someone would have a huge electricity bill when the street light outside her home was left on day and night all summer. She was right. Her own bill for the period was $182—eight times the usual sum. Officials concluded the light must have been plugged into her meter by mistake.

THE FABRIC DOCTOR HAS THE ANSWERS
QUESTION:
My dress is limp, can anything be done to restore it? — Mrs. S. D.
ANSWER:
Many fabrics today are treated with sizing in the manufacture to give body to the material. Some sizings are water soluble and some are soluble in drycleaning solvents. If some of the sizing has dissolved the dress may feel limp. For a small charge we can give your dress a sizing treatment.

Blackmail by Pigeon No Coup for Crook

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Police said Monday a blackmailer came up last week with a new twist—extortion by pigeon.

Farmer Josef Ernst told police he opened his house door one evening to find a basket on the step with a pigeon inside. Around the bird's neck hung a note: "Send 5,000 marks ($1,250) with the pigeon within the next 48 hours or your house will go up in flames.

Police prepared a small package which they sent off with the pigeon. Watchers saw the bird fly unerringly to a house two miles away in which 19-year-old agricultural worker, Ludwig Eizinger lived.

He was arrested and police claimed he confessed to the crime.

A police spokesman said the pigeon was a trained house pigeon and not a true carrier pigeon. This meant its home could not be more than several miles from the farmhouse and therefore police had no need to deploy an army of watchers to track it.

'I Took Money' of Aged Man

Picked from a police lineup by his victim last month, one of two men charged with robbery with violence pleaded guilty Monday in Central Magistrat's Court and told court: "I took his money."

Roderick O'Toole, 34, of the Beverley Hotel, also told Magistrate William Ostler, "I was pretty drunk when this took place."

He and Glen Wright, 27, of the Devonshire House, were charged following the robbery and beating of 87-year-old Yong Chong by two men Nov. 19 in which $32 was taken.

HELD FROM BEHIND

Det. Richard Ward told court two men pushed the elderly victim into his apartment as he arrived home at 546½ Herald.

Det. Ward said the men struck Mr. Chong, then one held him from behind and O'Toole hit him. The man holding Mr. Chong then took the money from his pocket, Det. Ward said.

COMMON ASSAULT

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told court O'Toole had a previous record of vagrancy, causing a disturbance while drunk, theft under $50, and common assault.

Magistrate Ostler remanded him to Dec. 16 for presentence report.

Wright elected trial by judge without a jury and was remanded to the same date for preliminary hearing.

□

A convict due for parole from William Head prison the day he appeared in court on a charge of being unlawfully at large told court his disappearance from the institution Nov. 30 "seemed logical at the time."

RCMP Constable H. McCombe told court that Lyell A. Winters, 30, received a cheque for $120 the day of his disappearance, for working on neon signs during his "working day" parole. Winters was serving a 10-year manslaughter sentence which ends Dec. 1970.

'REAL TRAGEDY'

Magistrate Ostler said of Winters' steady job and coming parole, "What more can a convict want? The real tragedy of it is that you've jeopardized your parole."

He called the system under which men coming up for parole were allowed freedom to work at jobs, gradually adjusting themselves back into society, "a good system, and a very enlightening system."

OTHERS HARMED

He criticized Winters for abusing the system and thereby harming fellow prisoners by his act.

Court was told Winters walked into Vancouver police headquarters and gave himself up last week. He pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

□

Arguing with police investigating a traffic accident Saturday cost James Walter Norris, 22, of 3103 Metchosin, a $75 fine after he pleaded guilty to obstructing a peace officer.

Norris told court, "I had a little too much to drink." He had refused four requests of investigating police to quit interfering.

Constable David R. Warren told court Norris had been drinking but he did not think he was intoxicated.

□

Two men appeared to face dangerous driving charges, following a race over city streets Sunday evening.

Allan F. Job, 22, of 160 Memorial, pleaded guilty to the charge, and court was told he admitted to police his action was "pretty stupid."

Prosecutor Stolte told court Job and another motorist were racing at speeds up to 75 miles an hour, and Esquimalt police were called in on the chase as the race moved toward them.

RECKLESS ACT

Magistrate Ostler told Job he was lucky not to be facing a more serious charge, because he could have killed someone by his reckless act.

He fined Job $400, recommended suspension of his licence, imposed a $100 good-behavior bond for six months, and ordered him to view the safety program for drivers put on by the Saanich police.

Human Rights Guard Urged

A human rights commission is needed in British Columbia, say members of the human rights committee of the Victoria United Nations Association.

Chairman Larry Ryan said Monday the provincial government has been asked to form a commission and to consolidate and update existing legislation.

LABOR DEPARTMENT

He said at present complaints are channeled to one man in the department of labor but, he said, enough manpower is needed to maintain a watchdog attitude.

"Right now, grievances have to be reported to the department before anything is done," he said. "This isn't enough. We need someone who will watch the situation to protect those who aren't aware of their rights, or the procedure."

Mr. Ryan said British Columbia is the only province in Canada without proper machinery for protecting the rights of its people.

POLICING NEEDED

"We think that the second most industrialized province in the country should have some policing of the existing legislation, as well as consolidation and updating of the laws."

He said there are 60 employees in Ontario in the human rights field, which concentrate great efforts in the north, where native people, unaware of their rights, could easily be exploited.

"We believe that if such a commission were formed here, it wouldn't just be sitting back and waiting for grievances to arrive—it would be out making sure there were no grievances."

PANEL DISCUSSION

The Victoria United Nations Association will hold a panel discussion on human rights at 8 p.m. today in Bank Street elementary school.

Panelists will be Mrs. C. K. Waddell, director of B.C. labor department's women's bureau; Tsartlip Indian Chief Ptrilip Paul, and regional citizenship liaison officer Brian D. Marshall.

John B. Chutter of CFB Esquimalt pleaded not guilty to dangerous driving, and told court he would plead guilty to speeding.

Magistrate Ostler pointed out to him he was not charged with speeding, and remanded him to Jan. 8 for trial.

□

"You're a dreary nuisance," Magistrate Ostler told 55-year-old Emil Johnson, who pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance in a Johnson Street cafe Sunday evening.

Prosecutor Stolte told court Johnson had seven previous convictions this year, mostly of vagrancy, and his last was Oct. 29 when he was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

The prosecutor told court Johnson was drunk, using obscene and abusive language toward a 19-year-old girl he sat beside in the cafe. Johnson was sentenced to 14 days in jail.

□

A previous criminal record which Magistrate Ostler said included "the whole gamut of the Criminal Code," was read to court after 49-year-old Stewart A. Graham pleaded guilty to vagrancy.

The magistrate imposed a $100 good-behavior bond for six months and advised Graham to go to the Salvation Army for help.

The same advice and sentence were given Kenneth G. Dixon, 38, after he pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Court was told he was found with Graham about 9:20 a.m. Sunday at Pandora and Government.

When the magistrate learned Dixon was a glazier by trade, he told him he should go to work, and visit the Salvation Army as a donor instead of a customer.

□

Marcel R. Trudeau, 36, of 2415 Alpine, who earlier pleaded not guilty to impaired driving and was remanded to Monday for trial, changed his plea to guilty.

Court was told he was involved in a collision at Bay and Government, and when questioned and tested for physical co-ordination by police, fell into the arms of one constable.

He was fined $400 and his licence suspended.

□

Alan Shiner of 2340 Douglas pleaded guilty to violating the Unemployment Insurance Act by not having the insurance booklet of his single employee.

Shiner told court he was new in business and, "I'm learning a lot of things the hard way." He was fined $25.

□

Ted Charles Verigin, 19, of 1050 Clare, pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor and was fined $25.

□

Joseph R. Lavallee, charged with assault causing bodily harm and wilful damage over $50, after attacking a man in the company of Lavallee's estranged wife, was sentenced to three months in jail on each charge.

Symphony—Never Better

By BILL THOMAS

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra never sounded better than it did Monday night at the Royal Theatre.

The program was taxing, the soloists were exciting and the evening came off in style. Who could ask for a better finale to the first half of the season?

Conductor Laszlo Gati chose to switch two items on the program after the Sunday concert and it proved a good idea.

The Mozart overture to The Marriage of Figaro was played with vigor and in good form, and Robin Wood and Winnifred Scott continued the mood by offering Mozart's concerto for two pianos.

They played beautifully and with the precise and crisp style that Mozart demands. This was a highly satisfactory performance.

★ ★ ★

It was originally intended to follow the overture with the Bela Bartok concerto for two pianos and percussion. This would have come as quite a shock after the overture and it certainly would have detracted from the Mozart concerto for two pianos.

The Bartok was thrilling. Fergus Heywood and his wife Janis handled the percussion with precision and managed to follow Maestro Gati's instructions to the letter.

Mr. Wood and his wife thoroughly enjoyed themselves at the two pianos and the audience woke up with a start. As Mr. Wood predicted it was a sound that could be guaranteed to set the little old ladies to fiddling with their ear trumpets.

As far as can be determined nobody left the hall in disgust and the music was accorded an ovation. It deserved it. The quartet and the conductor are to be congratulated. This was a very fine effort.

★ ★ ★

Purely personal bias compels me to suggest the best was saved until last. Zoltan Kodaly was Laszlo Gati's teacher in Budapest. He wrote the Peacock Variations as a test piece for orchestra. It is very difficult and the symphony played it very well.

I must say I cheated in refreshing my memory of this work by listening to Boston play it under Leinsdorf, on record of course.

The Victoria Symphony version of the Peacock Variations compares well. This was a thoroughly enjoyable and highly satisfying evening.

Back in the good old days (when winters were much, much colder), you could hear hot brooms slapping on every slough and mill pond from here to the Maritimes. Today, the rinks have moved indoors. Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

ABOUT TV

with Bruce Lowther

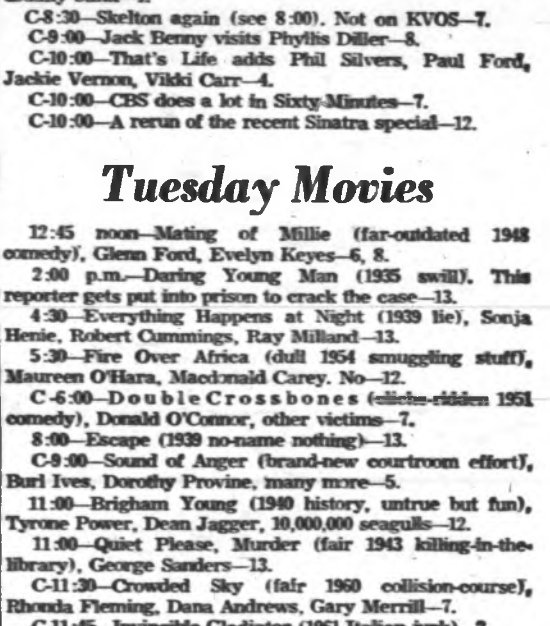

PEOPLE AND PROGRAMS: TV producers have lodged a formal protest against the new Emmy-award rules, but the National Academy of TV Arts and Sciences says it won't change a thing. The main gripes are over new rules that no program more than two seasons old can win, and no person who has won an Emmy or even been nominated can win again.

The CBC is dropping the post-hockey Alex Barris variety show Dec. 28 for something called Comedy Cafe . . . Ross Martin of Wild Wild West and Ernie Morecambe of the Morecambe and Wise comedy team are recovering from heart attacks . . . NBC has decided to drop two more Saturday-morning "monster" shows, Super President and Birdman, replacing them with Wolper's Untamed World and a children's version of Hollywood Squares.

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Saturday's singing answer — The required song was What a Swell Party by Cole Porter, sung by Sinatra and Bing Crosby in the movie High Society. The lyrical conundrums were Mimsy Starr got pinched in the Astor Bar, poor, Blanche got run down in an avalanche and "Have you heard, it's in the stars, next July, we collide with Mars." I hope.

Today's question — More about movie music. What bandleader wrote the music for Paris Blues and Anatomy of a Murder? Who played the background music for Genevieve? What piece of music was in Dangerous Moonlight and who wrote it? Answers Wednesday.

"You can't watch 'Julia' until you've cleaned up your room and phoning the NAAP won't help!"

Grader Hooks Wires

The Poles Came Tumblin' Down

DUNCAN—There was a red-faced truck driver in Duncan on Saturday.

A Mayers Brothers employee was transporting a grader to Arrow Trucking yard at Herd Road. It hooked onto overhead wires and:

* * *

- Four telephone poles were pulled out of the ground, and a fifth snapped off.
- B.C. Hydro lines were damaged, causing a two-hour power cut.
- The Cowichan Valley Cablevision connection to Chemainus was torn down, cutting out television programs.

"It was quite a sight," said a resident. "There was a snapping slapping and banging. We didn't really know what was happening, and there were wires all over the place."

Nanaimo Court Sentences

Community Work Urged for Youth

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—John Noble, Brannan Lake superintendent, said Monday that he would be willing to help Nanaimo Jaycees organize an experimental adult - youth program.

Last week the club agreed it would investigate the possibility of co-operating with the school authorities to set up projects within the community.

"I would be very interested in helping them set up an experimental program," said Mr. Noble.

He felt that the work within the school could be widened to cover a project which would work in conjunction with juvenile court or family and children's court.

"There are boys from Nanaimo who've never been involved in community projects until being committed here. When they are committed here, they return to the community and become involved in projets — but this time as Brannan Lake boys. This is kind of backwards, isn't it?" he said.

"We here, through former district magistrate Eric Winch and Magistrate Stan Wardill, have been recognized as a community where imaginative sentences are given to youthful offenders," he said.

If the community supported Mr. Wardill by providing projects to which boys and girls could be sentenced, Nanaimo could well be known as a delinquent-free area, said Mr. Noble.

Mayor Frank Ney said: "We're pushing beautification within the city. Perhaps these children could be given projects like this.

Greek Mine Traps 80

ATHENS (UPI) — An explosion and cave-in shook one of Greece's largest coal mines Monday, trapping about 80 workmen inside.

First reports said seven bodies had been recovered. Another 12 men were known injured and officials said they feared the toll would climb.

Quits as Coach

TULSA (AP) — Glenn Dobbs has resigned as head football coach at the University of Tulsa but will remain as athletic director.

Nanaimo

Sidewalks Protested

NANAIMO — More than a dozen petitions against local improvements were dealt with by Nanaimo city council Monday night.

The petitions, received from all parts of the city, opposed sidewalks, lane pavings, and storm drain installations.

ALL THREE DROPPED

Mayor Frank Ney noted that residents of one area had earlier petitioned for sidewalks. When they were offered on a local improvement basis, a petition against them was presented.

Council agreed unanimously to drop all three proposals.

Ald. Ted Jenkinson said that the areas where drains were dropped would need a two-third majority to regain consideration.

He said it would be a year before action could be taken if residents wanted reconsideration.

He told council that, as Mayor Ney had predicted, many people were reconsidering and had indicated that they would like to have their lanes paved.

FOOT PATROLS

Ald. Gordon McKay was supported in his motion that police be requested to institute foot patrols in the downtown area periodically on Fridays and Saturdays, including Friday nights.

He said that residents had registered complaints with him about jaywalking and rowdiness during peak business hours.

"I am particularly concerned about jaywalking. I think we will have an increase in this during the Christmas shopping period."

PARKING PROBLEM

He said that commissionaires should not have to show as much responsibility in controlling illegal parking and other traffic violations as they did at present.

He said it was time council formally made the application for foot patrols to the RCMP because requests he had made had not been acted on.

Domed Park For Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—Construction of a $40,000,000 domed stadium in the heart of Seattle, on the site of the 1962 World's Fair, was approved Monday by the King County board of commissioners.

The board approved the site despite objections from some that a multi-purpose stadium in the Seattle centre would worsen an already congested traffic situation.

The stadium will be home for the newly formed Seattle Pilots in the American Baseball League.

Three Hurt In Collision

A Duncan couple and a Victoria man are in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after a headon collision on the Malahat about 5:20 p.m. Monday.

Colwood RCMP identified the lone occupant of a car travelling towards Victoria as David Lawson, 25, of 3034 Colquitz. He received chest injuries.

Police said the occupants of the other car involved were Mr. and Mrs. Lansen Young of Duncan. Both received arm, leg and chest injuries.

Duncan Sports Field

Damage Report Annoys Council

DUNCAN — Members of Duncan city council were annoyed Monday night after being told by Ald. Tom Kilpatrick that McAdam Park playing field and a new field house, which was opened in the summer, had been damaged.

Aldermen decided that the facilities would be closed until further notice.

Ald. Kilpatrick, in a report, stated that the playing field was found in a "deplorable condition with the grounds chewed up and saturated with water."

He described the field house after the games as being "full of mud and holes were kicked in the wall of the shower room where no boots are allowed."

He said that after checking with Peter Owen, Cowichan Rugby Club president, he was told: "No permission or invitation was extended from the Cowichan Rugby Club to either of the two clubs involved."

Ald. Kirkpatrick said he had been advised by Mr. Owen that Quamichan and Mount Prevost junior high schools may be using the field during the week.

"In consideration of the condition of the field and the very humid weather, the parks superintendent has recommended that McAdam Park be closed until further notice," he said.

Mayor Jim Quaife commented "that is something that should never have happened.

"I was very upset this morning. We try very hard to provide facilities for our own community and further investigations will be made."

"Why did this happen?" asked Ald. Martin Lukaitis.

"These teams must have been supervised. If the field house is let for use then it should have been checked out."

"It is surprising to me that sports groups abuse it," said Ald. Rois Harder. "It is very unfair and it does make it look bad for sports groups."

The council also expressed concern about North Cowichan's "inactivity" regarding a flooding problem in the Centennial Heights area.

Last winter several houses were damaged by floods.

Ald. Jim Saunders said: "Last year at this time North Cowichan promised action but North Cowichan has not done anything.

"It will put a very heavy load on the Centennial Height subdivision in the event of a flood."

AVENUE DITCH

Mayor Quaife said that North Cowichan was expected to ditch Wilson Avenue.

"I think we should do our work when the sun shines and not when it is raining," said Ald. Lukaitis. The mayor pointed out that the city had worked on the problem.

Why a used Mercedes-Benz is a better buy than a new car of a lesser breed

Let's start with new cars. Some cost less—and deliver less. Some cost more largely because of their frills and finery. A Mercedes-Benz costs more because more engineering effort and money goes into building it.

That's why Mercedes-Benz cars stay good to look at, sound sweet and right, and feel good to drive—year after year.

And that's why buying a used Mercedes-Benz makes a lot of sense. Specially to the man who appreciates the inner satisfactions of driving a beautifully engineered car.

Make sense to you? If so, drop in and see us. We've got an excellent selection.

Agent Outlines Drug Purchase

He looked like a bank clerk in his suit and tie as he took the witness stand Monday in Central Magistrate's Court.

But when he made 28 narcotic buys in Greater Victoria this summer, 20-year-old Mike Onischuk was bearded and long-haired like a hippie, he told Central Magistrate's Court. He was actually an RCMP undercover agent.

In his first court appearance to testify in narcotic cases stemming from police raids Nov. 23, Constable Onischuk was testifying Monday in the trial of William R. Lowe, 18, of 614 Bay, who pleaded not guilty to trafficking in what was represented by him to be a narcotic.

Two other RCMP members were called to testify by Crown prosecutor Edward Pollard in the afternoon trial.

TWO WATCHED

Constables John G. O'Neil and Daniel Stene told court they observed the accused meet Onischuk, who was using the assumed name of Frank Richmond at the time, near the Centennial Square fountain. The men said they watched from the first level of the city parking building.

Constable Stene testified he searched Onischuk before the undercover agent met the accused, in a washroom of the Royal Olympic Hotel, and again searched him after the meeting.

Onischuk then turned over a small silver foil package he said he purchased from the accused and was supposed to contain hashish.

Onischuk said he paid $12 for what was represented to be one gram of hashish, but which later was analysed as not being a drug. He said Lowe told him, "It's good stuff." Under questioning by Prosector Pollard, Onischuk told court he normally paid $5 a gram for such a narcotic.

WHISPERING

Defence counsel Robert Price asked Constable O'Neil if the exhibit looked like any hashish he had ever seen before, and asked Constables Stene and Onischuk to smell the exhibit. Each time there was loud whispering from the gallery.

Magistrate William Ostler adjourned the case to Thursday for judgment.

Covers Lifted from Convict's Disappearing Act

OTTAWA (CP) — A man who escaped Sunday after a church service here in which 38 prisoners took part is back in custody, Solicitor-General George McIlraith said Monday.

★ ★ ★

"The lost has been found," McIlraith told Heath MacQuarrie (PC—Hillsborough) in the Commons.

The 30-year-old prisoner was one of 26 from Joyceville medium-security prison in Ontario and 12 from the Leclerc prison at Montreal who sang with 15 Mounties in a service at Christ Church Cathedral.

The man quietly ducked out a door during a basement reception later at the Anglican cathedral.

A spokesman in the solicitor-general's department identified the prisoner, arrested in Montreal, as E. A. Greenfield, a native of Verdun, a Montreal suburb.

★ ★ ★

Greenfield had been serving a four-year sentence due to expire in December, 1970 for robbery and possessing stolen goods, the spokesman said.

He was found hiding under a bed in a Montreal home about 2:30 p.m. Monday and offered no resistance to police, the spokesman said.

Greenfield was placed in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary in Montreal pending transfer to the Joyceville, Ont., prison where he had been serving his sentence.

The spokesman said Greenfield was wearing a civilian suit when he escaped in Ottawa Sunday.

Greenfield will be formally charged with escaping and a trial will follow after his return to Joyceville, the spokesman said.

Chamber Horrified

Students Scorn Profit System

The image of businessmen held by the average student is "just terrible," executive members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce were told Monday.

President Clare Copeland told a special meeting that he and another chamber member spoke at two schools this year and came away with the impression that students thought businessmen were ruthless, grasping people who would do anything for profit.

BEST FOR EVERYONE

Mr. Copeland added that he hoped this image could be changed, and the young people persuaded that the profit system was a legitimate way of life which added up to the best for everybody.

One way the chamber hoped to accomplish this was to hold a career exposition, at which young people could approach the heads of businesses and talk to them.

EDUCATED PEOPLE

In this way it was hoped that students would come to realize that profits were not evil; that they paid wages, kept up services and educated people.

Bishop Remi De Roo, who was present at the meeting, said that he had found two types of youngsters in schools. There were those who wanted to make a lot of money quickly and those who rejected the whole profit system and all its works.

IMPORTANT PROJECT

After hearing a discussion of the chamber's plans for the coming year, as outlined by the chamber president, Bishop De Roo said he felt that the plans for getting together with the young people of the city were extremely important — more important than any other aspect of the chamber program.

Mr. Copeland said the chamber committee which would work for a better understanding with youth would have members who were teachers, professional people, businessmen and representatives from government.

YACHT RACES, GOLF

Plans for a "spring fling," designed to stretch Victoria's tourist season, were outlined by Reginald W. Hind.

The festival, Mr. Hind said, would combine sports, a parade, carnival and cultural events. It would be held in May and include a fishing derby, yacht races, golf tournament, flower shows and musical and dramatic presentations.

Tentative plans called for the first "fling" in 1970, chamber officers were told.

Lighting Entries Lagging

Only 17 entries had been received Monday for the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce lighting contest, which closes Friday.

Categories in which prizes will be offered are best house decoration, best window decoration, best Christmas message, most humorous display, best group display by three or more adjacent houses, and best novice display.

Garden Notes

Lilac Worth Bother

By M. V. CHESNUT

Several times in this column I have had occasion to mention my grandmother's home in the country where, as a small boy, I was taken to visit every summer.

One feature which I remember well was a huge old lilac bush planted close enough to the back door so the intoxicating fragrance of its blooms would waft through the screen door and into grandma's summer kitchen — a screened porch tacked on to the kitchen proper, equipped with kerosene cook stove.

Because of these memory associations, I think that if I were just starting out to plant up a garden, the very first shrub I would select would be a lilac.

I must admit this choice is dictated more by the heart than by the head, for the lilac has many faults as a garden shrub. It makes a rather leggy and ungainly bush eventually, one which is all out of proportion for a small city garden. Nor can I recommend it as a labor-saving plant, for a neglected lilac can be a real eyesore when covered with ugly brown seed pods, and taking off the spent blooms is a miserable, monotonous and time-consuming chore.

Suckers, too, can be a problem. Some kinds send up a veritable forest of sucker shoots from the roots, and these have to be removed the hard way — by digging down and twisting the sucker free from the roots. In spite of these black marks, though, I wouldn't want a garden without at least one lilac in it.

Lilacs can be planted any time after the leaves have fallen, from November right through until the buds are swelling in the spring. While the best time is soon after leaf-fall and while the ground is still warm, I have moved a pretty big bush successfully in January, when I had to skim off a two-inch crust of frozen soil before I could dig over the planting site.

This plant likes a fair amount of lime in the soil, preferably in a mild, long-lasting form such as pulverized limestone rock, about four cupfuls per square yard well mixed into the planting site. Unlike hydrated lime, the pulverized limestone can be dug in at the same time as old rotted manure without any serious loss of nutrients.

It is important to plant your new lilac fairly deeply. If you buy your bush from a nurseryman, the soil marks on the stems will indicate its previous depth; in replanting, set it in two to three inches deeper than this.

Your new lilac may or may not bloom next spring, depending on its age and size. It will almost certainly bloom in 1970, but somewhat sparingly and with undersized blooms, and it won't be until the following spring — 1971 — that the plant really gets into its stride. In passing, I might say all the really worthwhile garden subjects are a bit slow in reaching their peak of production.

Now about varieties: If you are hungry for the old, familiar lilac fragrance, plant Souvenir de Louis Spaeth, which bears enormous trusses in deepest purple. Madame Lemoine is a fine, sweetly scented double white, while Belle de Nancy is a clear satin pink.

★ ★ ★

The newer hybrids will have bigger trusses of bloom, bigger individual florets and perhaps more vivid colors, but most of them are disappointing in the fragrance department. Some of the best are President Grevy, blue; Maude Notcutt, white, and Esther Staley, pink.

Back in 1952 there was quite a lot of excitement over a new yellow-flowered lilac from Holland called Primrose. I couldn't wait to get one of these, and it IS a pretty thing, but I couldn't honestly call it yellow. Mine bloomed in a pale cream shade, and with a rather peculiar scent which is not particularly pleasing.

Upton Mace Sells Chicago

WASHINGTON — It may be a little early, but a new organization has just been formed to bring the Democratic convention back to Chicago in 1972.

The chairman of the group, Upton Mace, told me that he hoped to get Hubert Humphrey to serve as honorary chairman.

"After all Chicago did for him," Mace said, "that's the least he could do for Chicago."

"But there are some who feel that Mayor Daley may have cost Humphrey the election."

★ ★ ★

"Nonsense. If it wasn't for Chicago, Humphrey might have gotten off to a very slow start in his campaign," Mace said. "As it was, Chicago fired up the party and they all left determined to make Hubert a winner."

"They did?"

"Of course. Everyone was talking about Chicago after the conventions. As a matter of fact, they still are."

"I know the Democrats are talking about Chicago, but I'm not sure they're talking about it in the same terms that you are," I said.

"Nonsense," Mace said. "I don't think there's one member of the Democratic Party, or for that matter the press, who wouldn't come back to Chicago next week for a political convention if we asked them to.

★ ★ ★

"After all, we have everything here: beautiful parks, wonderful hotels and excellent hospital facilities. Where else could you be clubbed in a police riot and be in an ambulance in five minutes?"

"Nowhere," I had to admit. "By the way, about the clubbing of people. There are some people in the Democratic Party — I'm not saying many — who aren't certain that clubbing people over the head is a good thing for the party's image."

"You'll always have malcontents in any party," Mace said. "The important thing is that the Democrats must hold their convention in a major city where the mayor has enough power to deliver the state. Chicago fills that bill."

"But Mayor Daley didn't deliver Illinois to the Democrats this year."

"That wasn't his fault," Mace said. "The only reason Illinois did not go to Humphrey was that Nixon got more votes."

"That's a point I hadn't thought of."

"Look, I don't have to sell Chicago to you," Mace said. "You were there this summer. Don't we have one of the finest police forces in the country?"

★ ★ ★

"The finest," I said. "They left their mark on a lot of people who were there this August."

"Of course they did," Mace said. "And do you know why? Because they're used to dealing with any kind of person that shows up at a political convention.

"Our cops are kind, courteous and noted for keeping their cool. Do you know they gave out fewer traffic tickets during August while the convention was on than during any week of the year?"

"Everyone I've spoken to," I said, "says Chicago policemen have big hearts. But this report by the committee on violence . . ."

"That's a lot of poppycock, written without the permission of Mayor Daley. If you really want to find out the truth about what happened in Chicago, you should read Mayor Daley's report.

★ ★ ★

"That was made with the cooperation of the Chicago police department, so it has some truth to it. You get private citizens writing about the police and you get a very distorted picture."

"Well, Mace, you've convinced me Chicago should be the site for the 1972 convention. Now all you have to do is convince the Democratic Party."

"Don't worry. We'll convince them. They'd be crazy after what happened there this summer to mess with a successful formula."

Clothes and Profits

SYDNEY HARRIS

A man I know has made a vulgarly large sum of money the last few years by managing the estate left him by his parents; he has invested in diverse companies with startlingly successful results.

I asked him about this at lunch not long ago, and he said the whole "secret" consisted in visiting the companies themselves before he made any kind of investment.

Having about as much fiscal sense as a walrus, I nodded sagely and said, "Ah, you look at the plant and the product and study the books and then make an evaluation of the whole corporate setup, both in physical and financial assets."

★ ★ ★

"Not at all," he replied. "I don't know anything about plants and processes and products — and not much more about the books. What I do mainly is meet the chief officers, their immediate subordinates, and the younger executives coming up — and notice how they dress."

I thought I had misheard him. "Notice how they dress?" I repeated, hastily straightening my tie at the neck. "Is that your criterion for successful investing?"

"It is these days," he said. "Maybe it wouldn't have been 20 years ago, but now I can't think of a better index to growth companies."

★ ★ ★

"How do you mean?" I asked, doefully reflecting on my dismal 50 shares of United Buggy Whip, my faded yellow-chip stock in the Ben Franklin Stove Co., and my framed certificates of the Tucker Car first issue.

"Well," he explained, "I go on the theory that no company can make it big today — except maybe a General Motors — unless the executives are bold and innovative and at least a little ahead of their time. And I think this shows in the way they dress or are afraid to dress.

"For instance," he went on, "I visited a company last month, and all the executives wore those old-fashioned fat pants and many of them even had pens and pencils clipped to the outside breast pocket of their jackets. They looked like something out of a Sinclair Lewis novel of the 1930s, and talked like it, too.

"I wouldn't put a nickel in that company, and I'd even make a sizable bet that they'll be gobbled up or squeezed out soon."

"But most business executives don't wear avant-garde clothes to the office," I protested. "Even the most progressive of them still dress fairly conservatively."

"Oh, I know that," he said. "I don't judge them by Saville Row or Carnaby Street standards — but only by the general impression they give of either swinging or slumping in their sartorial style. And believe me, in 20 years of investing I haven't found a better market index yet."

Greater Victoria Police Watching

Errant Walkers Face Summonses

Police, using warnings and a loud hailer, have started preparing Greater Victoria pedestrians for Defensive Walking Week, Dec. 15 to 21.

Victoria Police Chief John F. Gregory said Monday his force would crack down on pedestrians ignoring laws.

"A summons for violating pedestrian laws is a pretty poor Christmas gift, but it's much better than an injury that might put them in the hospital for Christmas," he said.

AUXILIARY POLICE

Chief Gregory said his force would "lean heavily on the use of auxiliary police." "Without them we just couldn't do the job. We plan to continue their use," he said.

Ten auxiliary policemen observed a stretch of Douglas Street between Fort and Fisgard for three hours Saturday afternoon, and counted 606 pedestrians who cheated on the walk signals.

FIRST TO BE HELD

Greater Victoria and District Safety Council said the Defensive Walking Week is the first to be held. It would be continued each year as part of the over-all safety program.

Victoria Traffic Inspector Richard Berry said Monday that violators of pedestrian bylaws might be charged in the future, and fined $2.50 for disobeying walk lights at intersections.

He cited a recent case of a pedestrian hit by a car, as being a rare instance in which the pedestrian was charged and not the motorist.

Inspector Berry agreed with the Safety Council's comment that pedestrian safety was closely related and dependent upon defensive driving by motorists. "In many car-pedestrian accidents, and even collisions were no pedestrians are injured, careless pedestrians are at fault," he said.

A loudspeaker-equipped police car is one of the best tools for educating pedestrians, Chief Gregory and Inspector Berry agreed.

Chief Gregory said the loudspeaker would be used at locations where large numbers of people congregated, such as near large department stores during special sale days.

Both men expressed distaste at the necessity of summoning pedestrians, but said such action might be the only way of educating pedestrians about the law. They emphasized that such a move would be only in the best interest of the pedestrians themselves.

Fast Current Slows Search

WHITE CASTLE, La. (UPI)—The fast-flowing, muddy Mississippi River turned back rescue divers and forced the U.S. Coast Guard Monday to call off a search for 17 crewmen lost in 90 feet of water after a collision between a cutter and a Nationalist Chinese freighter.

Coast Guard officials said the Saturday night wreck was one of its worst peacetime accidents. The hunt was ended temporarily by a river too swift to allow a search of its oil-slick waters. Two divers found no trace of the sunken cutter or the 17 men.

Saanich Readies School Budget

Saanich school board brought in a provisional 1969 budget Monday of $3,167,275 — 16 per cent above the current year's budget.

The figure was announced following receipt of education department figures giving the 1969 basic grant for the district.

"It looks as though we're in not too bad a position," said board chairman Nora Lindsay.

The district's 1968 budget is $2,709,499.

BASIC GRANT

A letter from S. E. Espley, education department comptroller, advised the board that its basic grant will be $2,382,944.

The department estimated that the basic levy on taxpayers for 1969 will be 25.5 mills.

The school board is empowered to raise additional funds up to a maximum of $2,632,238. Above that it must seek approval of municipal councils within the district, go to referendum or ask approval of the education minister.

In other business, trustees will meet with Education Minister Donald Brothers at 2:30 p.m. today for a tour of proposed school sites in the district. Later the board will have dinner and an informal discussion with Mr. Brothers.

Trustees accepted resignation of Claremont high school teacher R. W. Wickstrom who leaves for Mexico at the end of the year to study for a master's degree in linguistics.

Fatal Injuries Were Similar

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Burnell-Higgs of Finlayson Arm Road, died from similar injuries — a ruptured aorta—in a headon collision Thursday on Millstream Road, a coroner's jury was told Monday.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre adjourned the inquest until Jan. 9.

Heavy Rain Problem For Schools

Heavy rains of the past two weeks have caused flooding problems at two Saanich Peninsula schools, Saanich school board was told Monday.

Buildings and grounds superintendent Bryan Shaw reported that the crawl space beneath Lochside school flooded after a drain backed up, and a flooded sewage system at Keating school Dec. 3 caused a half-day closure of the school.

Females 'Victims' of Sidney Dog Fees

By NANCY BROWN

"This is gross discrimination against the female species," exclaimed a tongue-in-the-cheek Ald. Norma Sealey during Sidney council discussion on increased dog licence fees.

"It's the dogs that do all the damage—left alone the unspayed female is no bother at all."

She was criticizing a proposal to increase the dog tax from $2 to $4 for dogs and spayed females, and from $3 to $8 for unspayed females.

★ ★ ★

There is less trouble when there are fewer female dogs around, and the higher rates discourage them," retorted Ald. Stanley Dear.

Ald. Dear suggested higher impounding fees, so that the cost of dog control fell on the offenders.

It was decided to increase the fees to $3 for dogs and $5 for unspayed females while impounding fees will increase to $4 for the first day and $1.50 for each additional day.

It was decided to delete from the bylaw a clause restricting animals on the street to those on a leash, accompanied by a responsible person over 14.

★ ★ ★

Council was told that the clause had been part of the old law, but had not been adhered to.

"I went down to the beach the other day to investigate a barking dog," reported Ald. Sealey, "and found small children aged two and three on the beach.

"The dog was keeping them out of the water—he was the only responsible one there.

"In fact, he wouldn't let me near the children either. I had to find a phone and get the mother," she added, claiming that neither a leash nor responsible person is necessary in all cases.

★ ★ ★

Council, however, decided to insist that the dog be accompanied by someone, while deleting the age limit.

The bylaw will be adopted at the next council meeting.

Saigon Balks At Equality For Viet Cong

- Marines close trap on Reds. Page 3.
- South Vietnam can wreck Paris talks. Page 5.

PARIS (UPI) — The Saigon government balked again Monday at allowing the rival Viet Cong an equal and independent role at the expanded Paris Vietnam war talks. The action dimmed prospects for opening the conference this week.

On the Communist side, Radio Hanoi broadcast a Viet Cong communique saying it wanted to establish a "peace cabinet" in Saigon that apparently would replace the South Vietnamese government.

Pham Dang Lam, the working chief of the South Vietnamese negotiating team, met 2½ hours Monday with Cyrus Vance, No. 2 man in the American delegation, in an effort to come to an agreement on procedural arrangments for the talks.

POSITION UNCHANGED

"Our position has not changed," Lam told newsmen later. "You all know our position."

South Vietnam insists that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front is a tool of the North Vietnamese government and high command and has no right to attend the talks as a separate entity.

Lam said one of the matters discussed with Vance Monday was the shape of the table for the broadened talks. The United States wants a rectangular table with the American and South Vietnamese on one side and the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong on the other. Hanoi insists on a square table which would signify equal footing for the NLF.

KY BLASTED

"Everything now depends on the other side," Lam said when asked when he thought the full conference could begin.

An official statement from the North Vietnamese Monday blasted vice-president Nguyen Cao Ky, the superviser of the South Vietnamese team. On his arrival in Paris Sunday, Ky said the allies hoped that "justice and reason" would prevail at the talks.

"This is of no interest to us because it is the language of a puppet, a valet of the United States and a stooge of Hitler," the North Vietnamese statement said of Ky.

FEARS STRESSED

For the fifth day in a row Monday there was not meeting between North Vietnamese and American officials on the procedural issues. Agreement was reported last week on languages to be used and arrangments for briefing newsmen.

Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the second report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, tabled in the Commons Monday:

- French should be started in Grade 1 in English-speaking schools, and English in Grade 3 in French-speaking schools.
- Public education should be provided for the official minority language group, French or English, in all parts of Canada that will be designated as bilingual districts.
- In these minority schools, the mother tongue of the minority group should be the normal language of instruction.
- Parents should have the right to send their children to either the majority school or the minority school, but the number of majority-language children going to the minority school should be limited if necessary to preserve its "linguistic and cultural character."
- Teachers destined for the minority schools should be trained in separate institutions from those destined for the majority schools, but must be equally well qualified.
- The federal government should accept, in principle, the responsibility for extra costs that the provinces incur in providing education in the minority language.

Damaged foil raised from sea

New Hydrofoil Design Likely Crash Result

SEATTLE (AP)—Owners of the hydrofoil vessel Victoria say that out of calamity they have learned their high-riding ship is safe, but may need changes in design.

One of the vessel's two foils was sheared off Nov. 20, after striking a floating log near Port Townsend, Wash., while the Victoria was carrying 21 passengers from Victoria to Seattle.

The foil sank in about 170 feet of water, but was recovered by special salvaging teams during the weekend.

The Victoria struck a deadhead and quickly settled down to her hull, shaking up the passengers and three crew members.

But William Niedermair, president of the Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, said backers of the hydrofoil know "nothing catastrophic will happen if the foil hits something. That was the maximum accident you could have."

Niedermair added that some alterations may have to be made.

"We might have to revise our thinking on what the design should be," Niedermair said. He said a new design might involve a special mechanism to drop a foil should it hit something.

The Victoria limped into port on her own power following the collision with the log.

Air Delays Minor In Work-to-Rule

Problems Expected Closer to Christmas

From CP

A work-to-rule slowdown by 2,200 Air Canada passenger agents, switchboard operators and ground hostesses produced only slight delays in a flight schedules, airline spokesmen said late Monday.

The employees, members of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, began working to rule early Monday saying they will maintain the slowdown until a settlement is reached in negotiations for their new work contract.

Service aws normal in most of the 29 Air Canada depots across Canada. There had been five- to 10-minute lags out of Montreal International Airport early in the day after long lineups formed at ticket counters.

Company spokesmen reported flights running on schedule at Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Halifax.

Ticket office traffic was the only area affected in Victoria, a spokesman for the association said.

Bob Horsman, the association's Vancouver district chairman, said the "work perfection" program made it necessary to take more time processing tickets in the Victoria office.

Air traffic at Victoria International Airport was so light that the effect of the planned move wasn't felt. However, he expected an increase in Christmas business would create problems by next Friday.

There were no delays "of any consequence" at Toronto International Airport.

The work-to-rule manoeuvre, a technique often adopted by employees who lack the right to strike, was called Sunday night by officers of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association after conciliation talks with the company broke down at midnight in Toronto.

The negotiations resume tonight in Montreal.

Cabinet Well-Briefed

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

The provincial government came under varying degrees of attack Monday as several organizations presented their annual briefs to cabinet.

Spokesmen for the delegations said later that they had received indications of new government policies — ranging from a tighter rein on government purse strings in the area of new aid to municipalities, to a wide-ranging provincial physical fitness program.

CHANGES INDICATED

There were also areas of apparent contradiction, however. One group emerged from a session with the cabinet to report that the government would not pass legislation aimed at the nuisance created by discarded non-returnable bottles, while another group said anti-litter laws would get more teeth.

Among the new policies and legislative changes indicated to delegation spokesmen were:

- Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan said the Union of B.C. Municipalities was told there would be no more money for municipalities in the 1968 budget. (No reference was made to the extra $1 per capita for local ambulance services announced by Premier Bennett last fall and presumably still to be included in the budget.)

The UBCM delegation also gathered, Mr. Morton said, that there was no doubt that B.C. would have a higher standard of anti-pollution enforcement next year, and it was equally certain the government had no intention of introducing enabling legisla-

COLONIST 500 FUND

Granted Wish Would Ease Her Troubles

Pauline is a grown woman with a Christmas wish.

She doesn't know where her husband went when he left home two years ago. And she no longer really cares. But she wishes that through some magic or other she could communicate with him for only a few seconds.

* * *

She would let him know what Christmas is like for the three children he left behind. How it is to sit there helplessly and watch the deep disappointment in their faces. To try to explain how Christmas can't be as it once was, that it may never be very good again.

* * *

Pauline's Christmas wish is not the result of any feeling of malice. It's just that sometimes, when a burden weighs too heavily on one person's shoulders, it helps to let someone else carry it for a moment.

In many cases the Colonist 500 Fund can ease the burden a little. It has done so for the past 11 Christmasses. Money collected by the fund goes to 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau, an agency of the Community Chest. Each of the families received $33 last year.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or left at Avis Rent-a-Car, 800 Douglas.

B.C. Willing to Discuss, Not to Change, Bill 33

The legislation under which the new B.C. Mediation Commission operates is not subject to negotiation, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Monday.

Mr. Peterson said he was willing to meet officials of the B.C. Federation of Labor, as they requested in a wire sent Monday morning, but wanted it clearly understood that the meeting would not be for the purpose of negotiating changes in Bill 33.

"I am happy to receive their views, as I received them before the legislation was put into effect and afterwards," the minister said.

* * *

"But it is not a case of negotiation with either management or labor. We represent the public and will put the public interest first, whether or not it meets with the approval of labor or management."

The federation has said it is prepared to support the mediation commission legislation if the government will eliminate sections which provide for compulsory settlement of disputes in which the cabinet declares the public interest to be involved.

Bennett Approves Of More French

Premier Bennett said Monday his government was in favor of teaching "more French as a second subject" in B.C. schools.

He was commenting on a recommendation of the second report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism that all school pupils be required to study the second official language.

* * *

The report suggests that English-speaking children start French in Grade 1, and that French-speaking children start English in Grade 3.

Mr. Bennett said he agreed in principle with the teaching of more French in schools throughout the province, but added that getting enough teachers for the expanded program was likely to create difficulties.

* * *

Another major Bi and Bi recommendation contained in the report released Monday, calling for establishment of official language minority schools in bilingual districts, doesn't directly affect B.C. because there are no such districts as defined in the commission's first report.

England's Bonnie and Clyde Hit Road

Yard Fears '30s Shootout

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's "Bonnie and Clyde" gang abandoned its latest "stolen" car Monday almost under Scotland Yard's nose, then apparently hit the road again.

* * *

The four young delinquents and their blonde girl friend abandoned their sedan in a London suburb a few miles from Scotland Yard. Then they apparently continued flight, leading police on a chase that the Yard warned could end in a 1930s-style shootout.

"This is ridiculous in this day and age," said a crime squad spokesman at the Yard. "We'll get them — and we'll answer violence with violence."

* * *

The car was found early Monday morning in a suburban subway station parking lot a few miles from the homes of the gang, 20 days after two of them robbed a Birmingham bank of $48,000 after escaping from reform school.

Police said motorists later reported seeing the gang, armed with shotguns and other weapons, headed towards the south coast of England in another stolen car.

* * *

The bank robbers, Roger Denhardt and Terence Tharme, both 20, were later joined by two other reform school fugitives Frances Harren and Christopher Hague, both 19, and Sandra Ann Shelton, 18, who police say has a "taste for the fast, fast life."

* * *

Since then, they have eluded a nationwide police dragnet in a succession of stolen cars in an escapade similar to the exploits of the notorious Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker who became gangland legends in the United States in the 1930s.

O'Neill

'For a Selfish Ulster Find Another Leader'

BELFAST (Reuters) — Prime Minister Terence O'Neill warned Northern Ireland is on the brink of chaos with neighbor set against neighbor in age-old religious bitterness and strife.

In a television address, O'Neill appealed for a swift end to growing disorder.

* * *

He said Ulster has no armed forces to resist Britain and in any case Britain paid Ulster's £100,000,000 ($260,000,000) annual budget deficit.

"If you want a separate, inward-looking selfish and divided Ulster then you must seek for others to lead you along that road," he said.

Grader Hooks Wires

The Poles Came Tumblin' Down

DUNCAN—There was a red-faced truck driver in Duncan on Saturday.

A Mayers Brothers employee was transporting a grader to Arrow Trucking yard at Herd Road. It hooked onto overhead wires and:

* * *

- Four telephone poles were pulled out of the ground, and a fifth snapped off.
- B.C. Hydro lines were damaged, causing a two-hour power cut.
- The Cowichan Valley Cablevision connection to Chemainus was torn down, cutting out television programs.

"It was quite a sight," said a resident. "There was a snapping slapping and banging. We didn't really know what was happening, and there were wires all over the place."

Vocational Training Grows

Allan Burnside and Roland Ruff make moulds for mini-bicycle wheels in mechanical course at Cowichan senior secondary school. Vocational training is growing and instructeors are all former tradesmen so students receive first-hand knowledge of techniques which will help them when they go out job-hunting.—(Donna Clements)

Duncan Sports Field

Damage Report Annoys Council

DUNCAN — Members of Duncan city council were annoyed Monday night after being told by Ald. Tom Kilpatrick that McAdam Park playing field and a new field house, which was opened in the summer, had been damaged.

Aldermen decided that the facilities would be closed until further notice.

Ald. Kilpatrick, in a report, stated that the playing field was found in a "deplorable condition with the grounds chewed up and saturated with water."

He described the field house after the games as being "full of mud and holes were kicked in the wall of the shower room where no boots are allowed."

'NO PERMISSION'

He said that after checking with Peter Owen, Cowichan Rugby Club president, he was told: "No permission or invitation was extended from the Cowichan Rugby Club to either of the two clubs involved."

Ald. Kirkpatrick said he had been advised by Mr. Owen that Quamichan and Mount Prevost junior high schools may be using the field during the week.

"In consideration of the condition of the field and the very humid weather, the parks superintendent has recommended that McAdam Park be closed until further notice," he said.

Mayor Jim Quaife commented "that is something that should never have happened.

"I was very upset this morning. We try very hard to provide facilities for our own community and further investigations will be made."

"Why did this happen?" asked Ald. Martin Lukaitis.

"These teams must have been supervised. If the field house is let for use then it should have been checked out."

FLOODING PROBLEM

"It is surprising to me that sports groups abuse it," said Ald. Rois Harder. "It is very unfair and it does make it look bad for sports groups."

The council also expressed concern about North Cowichan's "inactivity" regarding a flooding problem in the Centennial Heights area.

Last winter several houses were damaged by floods.

Ald. Jim Saunders said: "Last year at this time North Cowichan promised action but North Cowichan has not done anything.

"It will put a very heavy load on the Centennial Height subdivision in the event of a flood."

AVENUE DITCH

Mayor Quaife said that North Cowichan was expected to ditch Wilson Avenue.

"I think we should do our work when the sun shines and not when it is raining," said Ald. Lukaitis. The mayor pointed out that the city had worked on the problem.

Nanaimo

Sidewalks Protested

NANAIMO — More than a dozen petitions against local improvements were dealt with by Nanaimo city council Monday night.

The petitions, received from all parts of the city, opposed sidewalks, lane pavings, and storm drain installations.

Mayor Frank Ney noted that residents of one area had earlier petitioned for sidewalks. When they were offered on a local improvement basis, a petition against them was presented.

ALL THREE DROPPED

Council agreed unanimously to drop all three proposals.

Ald. Ted Jenkinson said that the areas where drains were dropped would need a two-third majority to regain consideration.

He said it would be a year before action could be taken if residents wanted reconsideration.

He told council that, as Mayor Ney had predicted, many people were reconsidering and had indicated that they would like to have their lanes paved.

FOOT PATROLS

Ald. Gordon McKay was supported in his motion that police be requested to institute foot patrols in the downtown area periodically on Fridays and Saturdays, including Friday nights.

He said that residents had registered complaints with him about jaywalking and rowdiness during peak business hours.

"I am particularly concerned about jaywalking. I think we will have an increase in this during the Christmas shopping period."

PARKING PROBLEM

He said that commissionaires should not have to show as much responsibility in controlling illegal parking and other traffic violations as they did at present.

He said it was time council formally made the application for foot patrols to the RCMP because requests he had made had not been acted on.

Community Work Urged for Youth

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—John Noble, Brannan Lake superintendent, said Monday that he would be willing to help Nanaimo Jaycees organize an experimental adult - youth program.

Last week the club agreed it would investigate the possibility of co-operating with the school authorities to set up projects within the community.

"I would be very interested in helping them set up an experimental program," said Mr. Noble.

He felt that the work within the school could be widened to cover a project which would work in conjunction with juvenile court or family and children's court.

'IT'S BACKWARDS'

"There are boys from Nanaimo who've never been involved in community projects until being committed here. When they are committed here, they return to the community and become involved in projets — but this time as Brannan Lake boys. This is kind of backwards, isn't it?" he said.

"We here, through former district magistrate Eric Winch and Magistrate Stan Wardill, have been recognized as a community where imaginative sentences are given to youthful offenders," he said.

If the community supported Mr. Wardill by providing projects to which boys and girls could be sentenced, Nanaimo could well be known as a delinquent-free area, said Mr. Noble.

Mayor Frank Ney said: "We're pushing beautification within the city. Perhaps these children could be given projects like this.

Dumping Queried

CAMPBELL RIVER — A submission to the British Columbia Pollution Control Board warns there is a possibility that mine tailings being dumped in Buttle Lake are hazardous.

The Campbell River district pollution control board said in a brief, made public Monday, there is insufficient evidence on whether the disposal of mine tailings from the Western Mines Ltd. operation could effect fish or impair the lake's recreational qualities.

Continuation of the company's permit hinges on the results of an investigation by a pollution control expert and possible public hearings.

Three Hurt In Collision

A Duncan couple and a Victoria man are in fair condition in St. Joseph's Hospital after a headon collision on the Malahat about 5:20 p.m. Monday.

Colwood RCMP identified the lone occupant of a car travelling towards Victoria as David Lawson, 25, of 3034 Colquitz. He received chest injuries.

Police said the occupants of the other car involved were Mr. and Mrs. Lansen Young of Duncan. Both received arm, leg and chest injuries.

Snowy Roads Cause Minor Crashes

PORT ALBERNI—Although there were plenty of minor accidents in the Port Alberni area Saturday following a heavy fall of snow, there were no major incidents reported.

Nearly 24 inches fell between 7:30 p.m. Friday and the same time Saturday.

After city and highways department employees worked around the clock, travel was almost back to normal on Monday.

However, rain was followed by cold temperatures late Monday and there were reports of icy road conditions.

* * *

The Tofino road, where about 36 inches of snow fell in the high passes, was reported open Monday by the highways department.

"Actually it was never closed," said an official. "But we did warn people not to travel unless it was absolutely essential."

B.C. Hydro crews were kept busy until early Sunday with several long power cuts. The south end of Port Alberni and McCoy-Sproat Lake were the most seriously affected areas.

* * *

A large branch which snapped under the weight of snow on the River Road was responsible for a 90-minute failure Saturday evening.

The rough weather culminated in a thunderstorm Monday which shook early risers and roused others between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m.

Gale-force winds hit the Nanaimo area Sunday night. Gulf and coastal waters were whipped up and falling trees caused a number of power cuts.

Winds, gusting up to 63 miles an hour were reported at Comox airport Monday morning.

Nearly one inch of rain fell between Sunday evening and 6 a.m. Monday in Nanaimo.

NANAIMO — United Appeal officials estimate that Saturday's walkathon brought the Nanaimo total collection about 6,000 closer to the $75,000 target.

The walk, in which about 800 people took part over an eight-mile course, was to help reduce a $13,000 shortage. Appeal officials said the walk was so successful it might become an annual event.

Dunbar Criticizes Council Over 'Lack of Integrity'

PORT ALBERNI — Criticism of Port Alberni city council's handling of debentures was expressed Monday by Ald. George Dunbar.

Ald. Dunbar, a member of council's finance committee, quoted several examples of what he claimed was a lack of council integrity.

He said: "In March or April of this year, prior to amendment, the municipal Act provided that the maximum interest to be paid on hypothecated debentures was six per cent. At that time we were paying in excess of six per cent.

'LAWS OVERRIDED'

"My motion to comply with this section of the Municipal Act was defeated by this council. Subsequent amendment to the municipal Act saved a number of members of this council from being disqualified from holding office.

"However, when the motion was put, this council chose to override the laws of the province — one again a fine example if we expect our staff to act with integrity."

He also claimed that on some occasions money expenditures were authorize of the committee as a whole and were not subsequently approved by council which has not appeared in the report of the committee which had to be ratified by city council.

NO ACTION

Ald. Dunbar said that about two months ago this was brought to the attention of the committee as a whole but no further action had been taken.

He claimed that council had tended to "ignore either law of accepted business practice."

Ald Jim Macfie, finance committee chairman, said "There is nothing underhanded at all although we possibly do not follow the rules 100 per cent.

He added that "it is not half as bad as he is making it sound."

'VERY DISTURBING'

Ald. Charles Blair said that he found a trend toward conducting council business by press and radio through news releases and letters to editors and auditors very disturbing.

Council was told that a letter from Ald. Dunbar to the city's accountants had urged them to go through the minutes of the committee as a whole.

The auditors, in a letter to council, said that nine items had been authorized in committee

SOME ITEMS

Mayor Fred Bishop said that the fact that some items had not been transferred from the minutes to the report for ratification by council was an error.

"I hope you are not suggesting it is anything else," he said to Ald. Dunbar.

Mayor Bishop denied he had ignored any representation from Ald. Dunbar to council.

"However I am not here to argue whether you did or did not. I am more concerned about your tactics than anything else.

'NOT THE WAY'

"I don't think this is the way to correct wrongs."

City manager Denis Thain said the clerk usually served as secretary to the committee as a whole and "any ommissions are fundamentally mine."

He said he could not understand why, if he knew something had been ommitted from the report, Ald. Dunbar had not followed the usual custom of asking for it to be amended.

Teacher Joins Re-elected Trustees

A teacher was elected to the Greater Victoria school board Saturday, but voters also returned all incumbents running for re-election.

Allan McKinnon, 1760 Rockland, easily defeated Daphne Temple and Joseph Richards to take the Victoria seat being vacated by Trustee Ted Wood.

Mr. McKinnon, who teaches in Sooke school district and also operates a Victoria apartment house, offered himself as a bridge between trustees and teachers who have been critical of the board recently.

The final count was 3,092 for McKinnon, 1,280 for Mrs. Temple on her third try for election, and 749 for Mr. Richards on his first election attempt.

In urban Saanich, Dr. Donald Shorting topped the poll with 3,418 votes to win a third term.

George Curran earned a fifth term with 2,867 votes.

Snapping at his heels most of the way was Bernard Atkins, a former Saanich Peninsula trustee, who collected 2,108 votes.

★ ★ ★

And trailing the poll for the second time in as many years was William Hibbert with 1,508 votes.

Oak Bay incumbent Dr. Carron Jameson outdistanced Thomas Crone by a count of 1,998 to 1,254.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, interpreted the result as a vote of confidence in the board in the face of a recent non-confidence declaration by district teachers.

★ ★ ★

Personally opposed to teachers as school trustees, Mr. Bunn said he would extend a welcoming hand to Mr. McKinnon when he joined the board in January.

In Sooke school district, Dr. James Portelance topped the poll for a third term as a Belmont representative. Next was long-time Trustee Mrs. Isabelle Reader with 166 votes.

Mrs. Reader was given a close race by James Chidlow, a defence department of fire-fighter making his first attempt. He took 151 votes.

Darvis Cook, a former trustee, lost his second bid for re-election with only 67 votes.

The Milnes Landing sector of Sooke school district chose Ronald Fitton, who made his first try in September. Mr. Fitton garnered 167 votes to 141 for retired businessman Alfred Raue.

★ ★ ★

Saanich residents of the rural part of Saanich school district picked civil engineer Stanley Oakes over two other hopefuls.

He received 432 votes on his second try for the board.

Jack Hubbard, school planner for the Greater Victoria school board, collected 378 votes and B.C. civil servant Harold Jordan got 118.

★ ★ ★

In Central Saanich, retired school administrator Zachary Hamilton took 514 votes to beat Robert Derrinberg's comeback try which gathered 390 votes.

There were no school building referendums this year.

Members Back In Oak Bay

From the first returns in Oak Bay, the three incumbent aldermen, Douglas Watts, Ian Horne and Alexander Hendry, led in the counting and stayed there all evening.

Ald. Watts led at the finish with 2,255 votes, followed by Ald. Horne with 2,224; Ald. Hendry, 2,054; Hugh R. A. MacMillan, 1,497, and Elmer McEwen, 1,177.

The 35.8-per-cent turnout of the 9,231 eligible voters was described by all the candidates as exceptionally good, in view of the absence of a mayorality election or important civic issues. In all, 3,312 votes were cast.

Sidney

Victory Sweet At Last

A narrow defeat one year ago turned to victory Saturday at the polls in Sidney for assistant postmaster Herbert H. Perry.

He and incumbent William W. Gardner were elected to council, with a 37.6 per cent voter turnout.

Last year Mr. Perry missed his goal by only four votes, when he polled 357 votes — two fewer than this year.

Only 14 votes separated him then from first place.

Welcoming Mr. Perry to council, Mayor A. W. Freeman said he hoped to meet him early next week to brief him on council affairs.

Mr. Perry replaces Ald. Norma Sealey, who did not run this year.

Ald. Gardner, keenly interested in intermunicipal affairs, will be starting his fourth year on council.

'Voters Satisfied'

Titan Team For 1969

One Saanich alderman fell by the wayside, but three others were returned to office in a civic election that held little in the way of surprises.

Harold Todd, an alderman since 1957, will be replaced on council in 1969 by businessman Frank Waring, successful in his second bid for a council seat.

Mr. Todd, a letter carrier, finished seventh among the four sitting aldermen and four others seeking the four available seats.

GARBAGE COLLECTION

Voting on a question that is to serve as an expression of opinion, ratepayers gave a 3,785 to 2,409 nod to weekly garbage collection on a year-round basis. (It is carried out once a week in summer months and once each two weeks during the rest of the year.)

The question was not in the form of a money referendum, and the outcome will simply serve as a guide to council.

STILL UNDECIDED

The vote favoring weekly collection was slightly more than 59 per cent. Mayor Hurt Curtis said earlier that he felt anything less than 60 per cent might show the people were still undecided on the question.

Some 21½ per cent of Saanich's 29,783 eligible voters turned out at the 13 polling stations.

NORMAL TURNOUT

Returning officer Gordon Hayward said this constituted a normal turnout for what is referred to as an off-election year — a year when the mayor's job isn't open.

Mayor Curtis and four other aldermen stood for election last year. The four elected Saturday will serve two-year terms.

SECOND TIME

Edward Lum, a greenhouse manager beginning his third two-year term, headed the polls by a comfortable margin. It is the second time he has done so in the three elections he has contested.

Mr. Lum received 3,979 votes to the 3,694 polled by second-place finisher Alan Newberry.

Machine Mixes Results

An electronic machine ran amok in the Saanich municipal offices Saturday night and gave all of Ald. Leslie Passmore's votes from one polling station to Ald. Alan Newberry.

Returning officer Gordon Hayward said the mistake was not a human one. "The machine jumped," he said. The correction, however, was a human one.

There was a bit of a jam-up for the remaining council seats. Mr. Waring got 3,572 votes and Leslie Passmore, who at 70 has served a record 27 years on council, took the last available seat with 3,320 votes.

But Mr. Passmore, who said he hadn't really expected to win this time, was never really in danger. Gordon Campbell, who finished fifth, was well back with 2,739 votes.

After that it was Roger Bishop, 2,408, Mr. Todd, 2,274, and Lionel Speller, 1,671.

This was Mr. Speller's 11th unsuccessful attempt to gain a council seat.

PLEASED TO SEE

"It looks like a very strong team for 1969," said Mayor Curtis when the final results were in.

"Alderman-elect Waring has a major contribution to make in Saanich affairs, and I'm very pleased to see him elected."

At the same time, he said he was sorry to see veteran alderman Todd defeated.

Near-Recount in Victoria

Cliffhanger for No. 4

Voter turnout in Saturday's civic election in Victoria was one of the lightest ever, but the contest was a cliffhanger.

Right up to the final returns it appeared a recount would be necessary.

Final results put veteran Ald. Cecil Parrott in the top place, closely followed by Ald. J. Percy Frampton and two newcomers, Tom Christie and Harold Olafson.

CONTROVERSIAL

Eric Charman, the most controversial and outspoken of the candidates, came in fifth, and Ove Witt, a newcomer making his first try for public office, was in sixth spot.

Only 5,481 voters out of the eligible 20,462 turned out in the wind and the rain to cast ballots. The turnout of 26.8 per cent was lower than in recent years.

Almost two hours after polls closed, only six votes separated Mr. Christie and Mr. Charman, jockeying for fourth place in the election.

City Clerk Morran Waller held all his staff because a recount would have been automatic if two candidates had ended up with only 50 votes separating them.

The central polling station where votes were tallied was at the Senior Citizens' Centre on Centennial Square, and as 10 p.m. approached it was packed with candidates and serving members of council.

The crowded room hushed as the final returns came in and were posted on the board. The last return but one pushed Mr. Christie ahead of Mr. Charman by 75 votes and lifted Mr. Olafson into third place. The final result pushed Mr. Christie ahead of Mr. Charman by 250 votes and relegated Mr. Olafson to fourth position.

EXACT COUNT

The exact count was Parrott, 3,580, Frampton, 3,357, Christie, 3,041, Olafson, 3,026, Charman, 2,791 and Witt, 2,618.

Ald. Parrott said he was very happy with the results which he took as an endorsement of the record of council in recent years.

Ald. Frampton took time out from accepting congratulations on his own win to console Mr. Witt. He told the newcomer to civic politics, "It was your first try. I lost the first time I ran, too."

Mr. Christie, who made it on his first attempt for public office, said he found success "a bit overwhelming."

Mr. Olafson, also successful in his first attempt, said it was "a pleasant experience to win like this."

Nothing Changed

Bells Clamor For Leader

A note of humor crept into the vote count in Esquimalt as the final results came in.

As the figures went up showing incumbent Ald. William Bell had handily topped the poll, some of his supporters dingdonged a victory bell in his honor.

His topping the polls was about the only unusual event in the Esquimalt election which saw 48 per cent of the voters turn out to change nothing.

LOCK SECOND

In previous non-mayoral elections, Ald. Walter Lock had topped the polls but Saturday he drew 1,140 votes compared with Ald. Bell's 1,216.

Third victorious candidate was incumbent Ald. Edward De Costa, who polled 943 votes, 110 ahead of his nearest rival, Edward Alexander, with 853 votes. He was followed by former Esquimalt councillor Arthur Mebs, 841, and Robert Dewhirst, 611.

The poll was called unusually heavy, considering the inclement weather and the fact that there were no contentious issues in Esquimalt.

CONFIDENCE VOTE

Mayor Ray Bryant saw the vote as an expression of confidence.

"I am pleased to see such a strong vote of confidence in council members," he said.

"I would also like to congratulate the voters on a fine turnout. I don't know if we were highest but with this turnout we can certainly hold our heads up high."

Former Esquimalt councillor Arthur Mebs, a three-time loser, figured this was his last try for council.

"Three times is good enough for me," he said.

Central Saanich Sewers Closer with New Slate

There's some heavy work ahead for Central Saanich council, which will head straight into its far-reaching sewage plan in the New Year, says incoming Mayor Archibald Galbraith.

Elected by acclamation to replace retiring Mayor R. Gordon Lee, Mr. Galbraith, an engineer, said it was expected a start would be made on the system in March.

"We are the first municipality in Greater Victoria to plan sewage treatment," he said. "We shall be able to claim federal grants which expire next year.

"I'm glad to see Ald. Michell and Ald. Salt back. They are familiar with our plans, and one of our new aldermen is an engineer, so he will be a great help."

There was a 39.5-per-cent turnout of the 2,389 eligible voters to choose among 11 candidates seeking four seats.

Tom Michell, who ran on his record, was re-elected for his fifth term, easily topping the poll with 547 votes.

The only woman seeking re-election, Mrs. Margaret Salt will begin her third term. One of five women on the seven Greater Victoria councils, she was given 407 votes.

William Clayards, a newcomer, will fill the seat vacated by Mr. Galbraith. A federal government personnel officer, he polled 373 votes, 36 ahead of his nearest rival.

Donald J. MacLaurin, an engineer on the faculty at the University of Victoria, easily won a one-year term, to replace retired Ald. Charles Mollard.

Accountant Freshman

North Saanich council has an accountant alderman to replace retiring Ald. Harold Wilson, who has been chairman of the finance committee.

George O. Cumpston said he had decided to run for the vacancy because he wanted to offer his qualification as a chartered accountant to the community.

Incumbents Clifford Adams and George Aylard, who have been on council since incorporation three years ago, topped the poll.

Voting was slow but steady throughout the day, and 610 of 2,601 eligible voters cast ballots. There were 11 spoiled ballots among the 23.4 per cent cast.

Mayor J. B. Cummings welcomed the newcomer to council.

"I'm glad to have a finance man with us," he said.

"It will be very helpful, and as he lives in Deep Cove, we shall have a council representative of the whole area.

"It was a very close race, however, and Frank Edlington would have made a good reliable alderman."

Why a used Mercedes-Benz is a better buy than a new car of a lesser breed

Let's start with new cars. Some cost less—and deliver less. Some cost more largely because of their frills and finery. A Mercedes-Benz costs more because more engineering effort and money goes into building it.

That's why Mercedes-Benz cars stay good to look at, sound sweet and right, and feel good to drive—year after year.

And that's why buying a used Mercedes-Benz makes a lot of sense. Specially to the man who appreciates the inner satisfactions of driving a beautifully engineered car.

Make sense to you? If so, drop in and see us. We've got an excellent selection.

Dairy Farmer Gets Double Mention

DUNCAN — Duncan dairy farmer G. A. van Jaarsveld has been mentioned twice in the November bulletin issued by Jack Woof, supervisor, Cowichan Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Mr. van Jaarsveld's six-year-old Holstein, Trixie, which produced 18,975 pounds of milk and 845 pounds of butterfat in 305 days, earned him a feed prize donated by Buckerfields.

He also gained recognition during the past month because his herd had the highest herd average — a total of 1,536 pounds of milk and 63 pounds of butterfat.

In the two-year-old class, Asger Dam won a feed prize presented by Cowichan Co-operative Services.

One of his Holsteins produced 13,582 pounds of milk and 555 pounds of butterfat.

Mr. Woof said that during the month 65 records were completed with 56 Holstein, three Jersey, four Guernsey, one Ayrshire and one crossbreed.

"There were 29 mature cows, with over 500 pounds of butterfat out of total of 48, and 10 two-year-old with over 400 pounds of butterfat out of a total of 17 animals.

Clubs May Help Teenagers Centre

COMOX — Establishment of a coffee house for teenagers in Comox has been announced by Mayor R. D. Ellis.

Comox council has agreed to sign a lease for the old United Church building on Church Street for the "drop-in centre."

The building will provide a centre for teenagers in the valley for a six-month trial period.

The teenagers have formed eight committees to run the organization with an advisory board of adults.

Officials hope to hold group discussions, have special speakers, and arrange dances and other social functions. An executive will be formed by the eight committee chairmen.

Mayor Ellis said that he had been advised by area service club presidents that they would recommend to their clubs that a request for financial help for the centre should be approved.

Weekend Production at Woodlands School

Nanaimo Actors Plan Children's Evening

NANAIMO—Nanaimo Theatre Group will present three fairy-tale plays for children this weekend in Woodlands junior high school.

The group had been trying to produce such an evening since it was formed eight years ago, but their efforts were delayed because of a struggle to build a club together with a dearth of suitable plays.

★ ★ ★

Main proponent of the program is Keith Shadforth who is taking part. The plays, Nightingale, The Princess and the Pea, and The Shoemakers and the Elves, were adapted by Brian Way.

Mrs. Louise Wood, who teaches children's drama at Bowen Park, directs the play. Costumes are the result of combined efforts of the cast, led by Mrs. Fritz Schulze, Mrs. Jane Plater, and Mrs. Judy Bonwick, wardrobe mistresses.

Ticket prices have been set at 50 cent a child. Parents can attend for an extra 25 cents.

Saigon Balks At Equality For Viet Cong

- South Vietnam can wreck Paris talks. Page 5.

PARIS (UPI) — The Saigon government balked again Monday at allowing the rival Viet Cong an equal and independent role at the expanded Paris Vietnam war talks. The action dimmed prospects for opening the conference this week.

On the Communist side, Radio Hanoi broadcast a Viet Cong communique saying it wanted to establish a "peace cabinet" in Saigon that apparently would replace the South Vietnamese government.

Pham Dang Lam, the working chief of the South Vietnamese negotiating team, met 2½ hours Monday with Cyrus Vance, No. 2 man in the American delegation, in an effort to come to an agreement on procedural arrangments for the talks.

POSITION UNCHANGED

"Our position has not changed," Lam told newsmen later. "You all know our position."

South Vietnam insists that the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front is a tool of the North Vietnamese government and high command and has no right to attend the talks as a separate entity.

Lam said one of the matters discussed with Vance Monday was the shape of the table for the broadened talks. The United States wants a rectangular table with the American and South Vietnamese on one side and the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong on the other. Hanoi insists on a square table which would signify equal footing for the NLF.

KY BLASTED

"Everything now depends on the other side," Lam said when asked when he thought the full conference could begin.

An official statement from the North Vietnamese Monday blasted vice-president Nguyen Cao Ky, the superviser of the South Vietnamese team. On his arrival in Paris Sunday, Ky said the allies hoped that "justice and reason" would prevail at the talks.

"This is of no interest to us because it is the language of a puppet, a valet of the United States and a stooge of Hitler," the North Vietnamese statement said of Ky.

FEARS STRESSED

For the fifth day in a row Monday there was no meeting between North Vietnamese and American officials on the procedural issues. Agreement was reported last week on languages to be used and arrangments for briefing newsmen.

Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the second report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, tabled in the Commons Monday:

- French should be started in Grade 1 in English-speaking schools, and English in Grade 3 in French-speaking schools.
- Public education should be provided for the official minority language group, French or English, in all parts of Canada that will be designated as bilingual districts.
- In these minority schools, the mother tongue of the minority group should be the normal language of instruction.
- Parents should have the right to send their children to either the majority school or the minority school, but the number of majority-language children going to the minority school should be limited if necessary to preserve its "linguistic and cultural character."
- Teachers destined for the minority schools should be trained in separate institutions from those destined for the majority schools, but must be equally well qualified.
- The federal government should accept, in principle, the responsibility for extra costs that the provinces incur in providing education in the minority language.

Ground Personnel Dispute

WORK-TO-RULE DELAYS MINOR

Problems Expected Closer to Christmas

From CP

A work-to-rule slowdown by 2,200 Air Canada passenger agents, switchboard operators and ground hostesses produced only slight delays in a flight schedules, airline spokesmen said late Monday.

The employees, members of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association, began working to rule early Monday saying they will maintain the slowdown until a settlement is reached in negotiations for their new work contract.

Service was normal in most of the 29 Air Canada depots across Canada. There had been five- to 10-minute lags out of Montreal International Airport early in the day after long lineups formed at ticket counters.

Company spokesmen reported flights running on schedule at Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Halifax.

Ticket office traffic was the only area affected in Victoria, a spokesman for the association said.

Bob Horsman, the association's Vancouver district chairman, said the "work perfection" program made it necessary to take more time processing tickets in the Victoria office.

Air traffic at Victoria International Airport was so light that the effect of the planned move wasn't felt. However, he expected an increase in Christmas business would create problems by next Friday.

There were no delays "of any consequence" at Toronto International Airport.

The work-to-rule manoeuvre, a technique often adopted by employees who lack the right to strike, was called Sunday night by officers of the Canadian Air Line Employees Association after conciliation talks with the company broke down at midnight in Toronto.

The negotiations resume tonight in Montreal.

New Hydrofoil Design Likely Crash Result

SEATTLE (AP)—Owners of the hydrofoil vessel Victoria say that out of calamity they have learned their high-riding ship is safe, but may need changes in design.

One of the vessel's two foils was sheared off Nov. 20, after striking a floating log near Port Townsend, Wash., while the Victoria was carrying 21 passengers from Victoria to Seattle.

The foil sank in about 170 feet of water, but was recovered by special salvaging teams during the weekend.

The Victoria struck a deadhead and quickly settled down to her hull, shaking up the passengers and three crew members.

But William Niedermair, president of the Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, said backers of the hydrofoil know "nothing catastrophic will happen if the foil hits something. That was the maximum accident you could have."

Niedermair added that some alterations may have to be made.

"We might have to revise our thinking on what the design should be," Niedermair said. He said a new design might involve a special mechanism to drop a foil should it hit something.

The Victoria limped into port on her own power following the collision with the log.

Cabinet Well-Briefed

By IAN STREET

Legislative Reporter

The provincial government came under varying degrees of attack Monday as several organizations presented their annual briefs to cabinet.

Spokesmen for the delegations said later that they had received indications of new government policies — ranging from a tighter rein on government purse strings in the area of new aid to municipalities, to a wide-ranging provincial physical fitness program.

CHANGES INDICATED

There were also areas of apparent contradiction, however. One group emerged from a session with the cabinet to report that the government would not pass legislation aimed at the nuisance created by discarded non-returnable bottles, while another group said anti-litter laws would get more teeth.

Among the new policies and legislative changes indicated to delegation spokesmen were:

- Mayor Donald Morton of North Cowichan said the Union of B.C. Municipalities was told there would be no more money for municipalities in the 1968 budget. (No reference was made to the extra $1 per capita for local ambulance services announced by Premier Bennett last fall and presumably still to be included in the budget.)

The UBCM delegation also gathered, Mr. Morton said, that there was no doubt that B.C. would have a higher standard of anti-pollution enforcement next year, and it was equally certain the government had no intention of introducing enabling legisla-

COLONIST 500 FUND

Granted Wish Would Ease Her Troubles

Pauline is a grown woman with a Christmas wish.

She doesn't know where her husband went when he left home two years ago. And she no longer really cares. But she wishes that through some magic or other she could communicate with him for only a few seconds.

* * *

She would let him know what Christmas is like for the three children he left behind. How it is to sit there helplessly and watch the deep disappointment in their faces. To try to explain how Christmas can't be as it once was, that it may never be very good again.

* * *

Pauline's Christmas wish is not the result of any feeling of malice. It's just that sometimes, when a burden weighs too heavily on one person's shoulders, it helps to let someone else carry it for a moment.

In many cases the Colonist 500 Fund can ease the burden a little. It has done so for the past 11 Christmasses. Money collected by the fund goes to 500 families selected by the Christmas Bureau, an agency of the Community Chest. Each of the families received $33 last year.

Donations can be brought or mailed to the Colonist, 2631 Douglas, or left at Avis Rent-a-Car, 800 Douglas.

B.C. Willing to Discuss, Not to Change, Bill 33

The legislation under which the new B.C. Mediation Commission operates is not subject to negotiation, Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Monday.

Mr. Peterson said he was willing to meet officials of the B.C. Federation of Labor, as they requested in a wire sent Monday morning, but wanted it clearly understood that the meeting would not be for the purpose of negotiating changes in Bill 33.

"I am happy to receive their views, as I received them before the legislation was put into effect and afterwards," the minister said.

* * *

"But it is not a case of negotiation with either management or labor. We represent the public and will put the public interest first, whether or not it meets with the approval of labor or management."

The federation has said it is prepared to support the mediation commission legislation if the government will eliminate sections which provide for compulsory settlement of disputes in which the cabinet declares the public interest to be involved.

Bennett Approves Of More French

Premier Bennett said Monday his government was in favor of teaching "more French as a second subject" in B.C. schools.

He was commenting on a recommendation of the second report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism that all school pupils be required to study the second official language.

* * *

The report suggests that English-speaking children start French in Grade 1, and that French-speaking children start English in Grade 3.

Mr. Bennett said he agreed in principle with the teaching of more French in schools throughout the province, but added that getting enough teachers for the expanded program was likely to create difficulties.

* * *

Another major Bi and Bi recommendation contained in the report released Monday, calling for establishment of official language minority schools in bilingual districts, doesn't directly affect B.C. because there are no such districts as defined in the commission's first report.

England's Bonnie and Clyde Hit Road

Yard Fears '30s Shootout

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's "Bonnie and Clyde" gang abandoned its latest "stolen" car Monday almost under Scotland Yard's nose, then apparently hit the road again.

* * *

The four young delinquents and their blonde girl friend abandoned their sedan in a London suburb a few miles from Scotland Yard. Then they apparently continued flight, leading police on a chase that the Yard warned could end in a 1930s-style shootout.

"This is ridiculous in this day and age," said a crime squad spokesman at the Yard. "We'll get them — and we'll answer violence with violence."

* * *

The car was found early Monday morning in a suburban subway station parking lot a few miles from the homes of the gang, 20 days after two of them robbed a Birmingham bank of $48,000 after escaping from reform school.

Police said motorists later reported seeing the gang, armed with shotguns and other weapons, headed towards the south coast of England in another stolen car.

* * *

The bank robbers, Roger Denhardt and Terence Tharme, both 20, were later joined by two other reform school fugitives, Francis Harren and Christopher Hague, both 19, and Sandra Ann Shelton, 18, who police say has a "taste for the fast, fast life."

* * *

Since then, they have eluded a nationwide police dragnet in a succession of stolen cars in an escapade similar to the exploits of the notorious Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker who became gangland legends in the United States in the 1930s.

O'Neill

'For a Selfish Ulster Find Another Leader'

BELFAST (Reuters) — Prime Minister Terence O'Neill warned Northern Ireland is on the brink of chaos with neighbor set against neighbor in age-old religious bitterness and strife.

In a television address, O'Neill appealed for a swift end to growing disorder.

* * *

He said Ulster has no armed forces to resist Britain and in any case Britain paid Ulster's £100,000,000 ($260,000,000) annual budget deficit.

"If you want a separate, inward-looking selfish and divided Ulster then you must seek for others to lead you along that road," he said.
